Shalom laYehudim, Shalom laBnai Noach, Shalom laGoyim. It's the evening of the 2nd day, kaf-zion beShvat, tav-shin-ayin-beh, Parashas Teruma, the evening of the 1st day, Sunday, 15 February, 2015, webcasting from the focus of world attention.

You all know how I have said I am not an Israeli because unlike real Israelis, I am not at all bothered by the cold shoulder Israel is given in the council of nations a.k.a. the United Nations. Israel is the only member-state among 193 that never can sit on the UN's highest body, the Security Council. Israelis, especially the Enlightened, are forever bemoaning this, and believe with Boojie and Tsipi this is because Israel refuses to stop oppressing the ancient Balestinian nation.

Yours truly, on the other hand, grins from ear to ear when I think of this. I find it a breathtaking realization of a prophecy made over 3,000 years ago. Is there any other nation on earth that has a national record from 3,000 years ago, let alone a prophecy in that record, in this case in the book of Numbers, which came true in our time? Said the gentile prophet Balaam, "You will be a people that dwells alone and not be counted among the nations."

I feel about that verse as I do about the prophecy in a verse in the last volume Devarim/Deuteronomy that talks of a time when the Jews will provoke/irritate HaShem with a non-god, and be paid back in kind with a non-people, a vile nation. I spent many years, many hours researching my book about a phantom nation of terrorists which first of all is a record, an archive of a time in Jewish history, and I did that research before I came upon that verse saying, "They provoked Me with a non-god, angered Me with their vanities; so I shall provoke them with a non-people, a vile nation shall I anger them.”

I also don't care that the UN so abuses Israel. I don't need their love. To me their hostility it is only more evidence of the truth of Torah. The ruling cultural elite here does pine for acceptance in the halls of the UN, but I know that organization from the inside to be a cesspool of corruption and irresponsible bureaucrats, infected in every one of its departments and agencies with age-old, irrational, delusional Jew-hatred.

That some peoples don't like us these days, so what? For example, the Swedes. They are committing national suicide in their embrace of Muslims, so of course they are hostile to us. Islam is a most malignant form of Jew-hatred and the Swedes know that at some level of awareness. The Gatestone Institute posted yesterday on Sweden as the rape capital of the West now. In 1975, there were 421 rapes reported to the Swedish police. Last year, the tally was 6,620, an increase of 1,472%.

And mentioned as well was something that I was unaware of. In 1975, a decision was taken in Sweden to go multicultural and that is when they opened the floodgates to Muslims and today they are living with the consequences. It has become the rape capital of the West, which makes perfect sense to me. I believe the rotten root of Hamitic society to be a seriously screwed up one in the matter sexuality, the relations between the sexes and within the sexes. There is an organic connection, I think, between so much of what is wrong in Araby and its still ancient practice of polygamy.

And I also found it interesting and coincidental that 1975 was also the year Zionism was declared at the UN to be a form of racism. It is interesting the connections between Swedes and other post-Christian European nations committing demographic suicide these days and their hostility to Israel as a people that continues to live and hang together.

Now I have a better understanding of what an old, English gentile ex-friend was getting at when he explained antisemitism in England as a result of the irritation people feel toward Jews because “they stick together.” And I now understand that sticking together is what we do in order to stay alive as a people. Human history is very much a series of peoples that come into the world, live out their destiny and then leave the world.

But not the Jews. So hating our survival is also a way of hating the truth of our religion that HaShem exists and wants man to behave himself better than he does. We are his messengers and our presence is evidence of His truth that people don't want to hear. In the Garden of Eden, Adam and Eve rebelled against the first negative commandment, and people have been rebelling ever since.

And now we are faced as we always have been by the sons of Ishmael and his spiritual seed, the Muslims who remain mired in the same mental universe they were trapped in thousands of years ago. Memri.org posted on Friday an item entitled,

“Syrian Commentator Hussam Shoei’b: Zionists Burned Jordan Pilot, Just like they make Passover Matza with blood.”

Yeah, this Levantine commentator was speaking on Al-Manar TV in Lebanon, which is Hezbollah TV, and said that the immolation of that Jordanian pilot was a “clear demonstration of the barbarity of the Zionist entity. In the past, they used to make Passover matzos with human blood and eat them. This is exactly what is happening in Syria today for the whole world to see.” Yes, the Zionists were behind the burning of that Jordanian pilot.

And with leaders and thinkers like this, Israel is supposed to go into partnership and make a deal, a nice deal, pleasing to such men? And if we don’t, well, what we get are Jews shopping for Shabbos getting massacred, and now a Jew shot dead at Bas Mitzvah celebration in Copenhagen.

This was the implicit message of France’s initial rejection of Netanyahu’s request for an invitation to the Charlie Hebdo march. That march was about freedom of expression in the press so precious to France and other liberal democracies, but as for those four dead Jews, well, that’s kind of understandable, you know, because the Jews did steal Palestine from the Balestinians and continue to act as their colonial oppressors.

Maybe you saw today’s item on B’Tselem’s report on last summer’s missile aggression against us and our self-defense. Rather, the larger item was on Roger Waters and hundreds of British artists now boycotting Israel and citing B’Tselem’s report as justification for the boycott. They say the boycott will be lifted when Israel “respects international law and ends its colonial oppression of the Balestinians.”

“Our colonial oppression of the Balestinians.” Not only is there absolutely nothing Balestinian about these self-proclaimed Balestinians, there is no colonial oppression here. Whoever wrote this text knows nothing of colonialism. Colonies were far-flung possessions of a Mother Country whose principle purpose was to send raw materials back to it. The tiny land of Judea and Samaria that we captured in 1967 has no raw materials.

Jimmy Carter and other Jew-haters with a screw loose call the post-67 communities “colonies” when they are nothing but bedroom communities that were built on barren hillsides displacing no imaginary Balestinians.

Hallucination is a good word to describe the above commentary by this Syrian commentator who apparently is thought well enough in his society to be asked to comment on the passing scene and he says that poor Jordanian pilot was burnt to death by al-Yahud, to make Arabs and Muslims look bad.

This is the enemy whom we face, who makes demands that are inhuman. They dehumanize us, if not the same way the Nazis did, but they do. They demand we respond to Arab demands and retreat from the high ground, turn it over to them, turn a half-million Jews into homeless refugees inside their own tiny country then trust the Arabians after this to become good neighbors. They will stop being monsters who decapitate Jews praying a synagogue. They will become nice neighbors who will only want to live next door to us in peace.

These neighbors of ours jumped for joy on 9-11, but we are supposed to pay no mind to that.

Yes, our immediate neighbors here, like that analyst on Hezbollah TV, are playing with a very different deck of intellectual cards, and over these last six years they have been encouraged by a Muslim brother – in both senses of the term -- in the White House. Maybe you saw today the item about John Boehner confessing that his invitation to Bibi was less than transparent because everybody knows Obama doesn't like Bibi and he had to do something to get around that.

And then there is the version that Caroline Glick reported on on Friday; that there was no violation of protocol, no rudeness on Bibi's part, but that is the accusation shot out of the White House in order to smear the Jewish people's current champion.

But more important, on reflection over Shabbos and influenced by Glick's unusually good column: Obama's reference last week to the murdered Jews as just random people deserves more thought. I see now here a variation on a theme: this was just Obama pulling another Ft. Hood. As he denied a denial of almost psychotic magnitude then by insisting that was just workplace violence, so the slaughter in the Hyper Cacher was likewise not what it appeared to be. Ft. Hood appeared to be a Muslim madman massacring people for his evil religion, which Obama insisted had nothing to do with Islam, so those four dead Jews were not dead Jews murdered for being Jews, just "random folks" was his term.

And I say, and not for the first time, serious members of Congress who care about the country must seriously look into the possibly but finding respectable and licensed, board certified psychiatrists to declare this man unfit for service and have him removed from office on those grounds.

I mean, this is just intolerable that the fate of the United States of America, the fate of the free world it should be leading, the fate of Israel, are in the hands of this less than compos mentis man.

Which is why it has been encouraging that such as Elie Wiesel and Bill Kristol of the Weekly Standard and Steve Forbes and Mike Huckabee are all behind Bibi 100% speaking to Congress, for they see the issue is not only about Israel but bigger than Israel. Obama is a threat to the United States.

This character has let in thousands and thousands of Third World people not coming for the American way of life but their own. And who knows how many Muslims are among them? I've heard there have been tens, even scores of thousands, being given visas.

Forbes is not the first to see in Bibi the Churchill of our times who must, Forbes wrote, speak before Congress. The Iranians now have a missile capable of targeting not only Israel but also Europe, and the current talks say nothing of this growing missile technology. Forbes wrote his the most dramatic sentence: “The destruction of Israel would mean, ultimately, the end of Western civilization; the moral rot that would permit such an event would be just about impossible to surmount.”

In truth, yours truly has followed these talks with only one eye, so to speak, and thus am no expert on their technical side. You know: how many centrifuges they should have and what percentage enrichment they should be permitted to enrich. What bothers yours truly most is less these technical issues than the very fact that these talks are held at all. Iran declared war on the U.S. in 1979 and since then has committed numerous acts of war. The entire enterprise rests on the proposition that Iran is a reliable partner for any terms agreed to. This is a regime threatening Western civilization, as Steve Forbes wrote, and as such people have to stand up and defeat it, defang it, cripple and prevent it from advancing its nefarious, imperialist dreams of enveloping the entire planet with their barbaric religion.

Forbes called Obama’s policy “a dangerous course of abject appeasement of an evil regime.”

Indeed. As evil as Nazi Germany and Communist Russia, and like them is intoxicated with Jew-hatred.

What is interesting too in the phenomenon called Barack Hussein Obama and his presidency is the influence he has had on otherwise sober individuals, like his spokesman Josh Ernest and the State Department spokeswoman Jen Psaki who were forced to support Obama’s description of the Hyper Cacher massacre as perpetrated against people who had no common background or nationality. And they did this after it was common knowledge before the whole world that the murderer spoke on the phone as he held his terrified hostages before murdering them, saying he had chosen the place because it was Jewish.

Where oh where is Jimmy Stewart in Mr. Deeds Goes to Washington? Where is the hero who will speak up and declare not that the emperor has no clothes but that the emperor is not playing with a full deck?

This man’s behavior really tracks with a radio interview I heard some years ago with a woman in Hawaii who claims to have run in similar social circles in high school with Barry Soetero and she said that she, and apparently others, told him that he just had to stop telling stories that were never true.

It is, in a way, a very Muslim behavior to do this; to make up stories to strengthen oneself and get what one wants in life. This is accepted behavior. Lying is how Arab Muslims get through the day.

As they feel no obligation to history as it was – they say whatever they want; that the Ancient Palestinians are the real owners and the Holocaust never happened – for the Qur’an allows this behavior.

Yes, what the world needs now is just the opposite of Obama's denial of the truth that Islam, his beloved religion, is a menace to the human race.

What is so wrong in the thinking of the West even among the best of people is the vocabulary words "Islamism" and "Islamist" and "radical Islam." No. The first three are inventions of the non-Islamic West, while the Islam on display in all its gruesome and grisly behavior is the real Islam, the true root of Islam. "Radical" comes from the Latin "radix" for "root" so that so-called "radical Islam" is not out there on the fringes of society but in the center.

This is why the Muslim Brotherhood won the elections in Egypt after Mubarak was overthrown. Left to their own devices, in an honestly conducted election, most Egyptians did vote for the Brotherhood because they don't know any better. Half of them are illiterate, uneducated, swept along by history with no understanding of life and society. Most of the Arabs here in Eretz Yisrael 2006 voted for HAMAS that is also the Brotherhood.

Islam is intrinsically a totalitarian ideology like Nazism, Fascism and Communism that brooks no opposition. To disagree with the regime is to risk being put to death. It was reported shortly after the burning of that Jordanian pilot by ISIS that a mullah in ISIS objected to the decision to burn him and was sacked from his position in the organization and may now himself be put on trial, convicted and executed.

This was the behavior and thinking of Robespierre in 1793 during the Terror of the Revolution who sent opponent after opponent to the guillotine for not possessing the right amount and quality of revolutionary virtu. To oppose the regime was to be convicted of criminal sedition in one's thoughts. And here is this Muslim cleric within ISIS himself threatened with execution and who knows, maybe by fire as well for his rebellion.

And if Ali Sina is correct, this was how it was in Muhammad's day. This was the regime of Muhammad who was as capricious and as cruel as Saddam Hussein, as Muammar Gaddafi and legions of other Muslim "fanatics," as they appear in Western eyes.

But they are not fanatics. They are not extremists. That implies that there is a moderate center, a less violent form of the religion.

No. There is a less active segment of Believers, the great mass, passive, resigned to life's suffering who lack the drive to lead a Muslim crusade.

But that does not make them moderate, just lethargic.

I've commented before on how in the Judeo-Christian West the last people in society to rouse the rabble to war are the clergy, the Protestant ministers, Catholic priests and Rabbis – versus the universe of Islam in which the great rabble rousers are the clergy. In a way, it is a kind of reverse, looking-glass universe, and the West has to wake up from the false fantasy of "the three great Abrahamic religions; the three great monotheistic faiths" as if all were equal.

But they are not all equal. Islam is so different. It is a fool's game thinking that multiculturalism is possible, meaning, the living in one society in which Islam is just another religion like the others.

No, it is not. This afternoon the AP reported that in Germany, the town of Braunschweig, a planned carnival parade today had to be cancelled because police and other security agencies believed there was a threat of violence at the parade.

Thus do the Muslims invade and wreck out lives; disrupt them. Billions of air passengers have for decades now and especially after 9-11 been inconveniences by security checks thanks to Muslims acting on their Muslim belief in the holiness of massacring people.

The AP also reported that last month in Germany's biggest carnival in Cologne, one of the floats was banned because it was a salute to the Charlie Hebdo victims. The design was chosen in an online vote and it showed a man dressed in black with an explosives belt on him wielding a drawn gun, and a jester inserting a pencil into the barrel. The carnival organizers evidently were pleased to salute to free speech and freedom of the press but local security agencies nixed the float.

And thus to the forces of darkness, the darkness of Islam -- which may be the darkness of the 9th plague -- exercise power over lovers of freedom and liberty.
