Shalom laYehudim, Shalom laBnai Noach, Shalom laGoyim. It's the evening of the 2nd day, kaf-alef beSivan, tav-shin-ayin-beh, Parashas Shelakh, the evening of the 1st day, Sunday, 7 June 2015, webcasting from Israel, the Jesus of the nations.

As Jesus was a Jew who in his final moments is believed by Christians to have been the guiltiest human being in the world – he had taken on himself all the sins of mankind, turning himself into a kind of scapegoat...you know that word “scapegoat” was invented by William Tyndale in the 16th century to translate the Hebrew expression sa'ir laazazel, the goat on Yom Kippur chosen by lot to be symbolically laden by the High Priest on the Temple Mount with the all the sins of the community before being driven into the wilderness and over a cliff to its death...well, that was Jesus who took upon himself all the sins of mankind, and so in his passion on the cross -- along with a quarter-million other Jews crucified here, whose crosses lined the Roman roads like modern-day telephone poles, he relieved everyone else of their guilt.

And so we have the spectacle today, here in Israel, of Jews accused of crimes by the Breaking the Silence group of anti-Jew Israeli Jews paid by antisemitic goyim mostly in Europe, for crimes we allegedly committed in Gaza last summer, which finger-pointing works to relieve the rest of the world of their guilt, and especially the Arabs in Gaza for their crimes against us, about which Breaking the Silence is perfectly mute.

The prime minister today, responding to the renewal of rocket fire at us out of Gaza, sneered and rightly so, in his weekly cabinet meeting's opening statement, that about these rockets the world is silent...at the same time that in Zurich the Breaking the Silence slanderers want everybody to boycott Israel for its killing of children in Gaza last summer, which is like Obama denying that Islam bore the guilt of the massacre at Ft. Hood when he insisted Islam had nothing to do with that Muslim maniac who murdered what, more than a dozen of his fellow soldiers.

The Breaking the Silence group, who met with a White House representative last week as well, do not see the guilt for the deaths of those Arab children on the heads of the adults there at all, the HAMAS bullies who hid behind them. That exhibition in Zurich is an exercise in what magicians -- stage entertainers, more accurately illusionists -- call "misdirection," getting the audience to look at something else to distract them from something else.

About the behavior of HAMAS, whose killers rose to notoriety for persuading others to go kill themselves in the middle crowds of Jews; the HAMAS that last summer fired from schoolyards and behind children who died in Israel's self-defense, the Breaking the Silence group is silent.

In 1974, PLO maniacs held almost two dozen Jewish children hostage in a school in Maalot in the Galilee. They stood them up against the windows so that IDF snipers outside could not shoot at their captors behind them. They were held for like 12 hours of terror, and then when the IDF launched a rescue operation, they murdered all those Jewish children. And what these anti-Jew Jews are doing now is an attempt to divert the world's attention from the guilt of the Arabs, Israel's mortal enemies.

The barbarian, as Sigmund Freud taught, is defined by his absence of guilt. For 14 years, the Arabs in Gaza have launched tens of thousands of rockets into civilian areas in Israel, terrifying above all little children. They say 75% of the kids in Sderot suffer from PTSD, and here is Breaking the Silence running an exhibit in Zurich to display the alleged murder of Arab children by the IDF.

Israel is fighting back as reported last time and telling the Swiss government that these are unsubstantiated, nameless, anonymous accusations. For all one knows, these 60 testimonies of IDF soldiers were written by one man. This exhibition that the Swiss government partly funds is sheer antisemitism right out of the Middle Ages, out of the Spanish Inquisition. It is part of the current anti-Jew jamboree of Apartheid Weeks on campuses, votes by unions to boycott Israel as Apartheid South Africa was boycotted because "Zionism is racism."

Yes, the UN "Zionism is racism" resolution of 1975 was annulled in 1991 but that was meaningless. Thus does world anti-Jewry in our time still characterize the resurrection of the Holy Land by the Jewish people as a nationalism that is inherently racist. And never mind that there is no Jewish race; never mind we may be the most racially mixed people on earth.

The charge, though, is revealing of the black heart of the antiJew who just flips out, who cannot tolerate the existence of the Jewish people because they are cliquish and clannish and think they are better than everyone else and think they have the right to do anything to non-Jews they want.

And I say Jewish national fellow-feeling is no different than any other. Frenchmen are proud to be Frenchmen, and Brits and Irish proud to be Brits and Irish; Americans are proud to be Americans. One national community or other most Sunday's in Manhattan has a parade down Fifth Avenue celebrating itself

But for Jews to enjoy being Jews, this drives the antiJews crazy. So crazy, they hallucinate crimes we don't commit. Why is patriotism in all other peoples accepted, but when Jews celebrate theirs, they are racists?

During the last spasm of hysterical Jew-killing here, the Al-Aqsa Intifada, some two dozen madmen managed to explode themselves in the middle of little Jerusalem. Israelis build a barrier to defend themselves, and the antiJew calls it the "racist apartheid wall." Because the Jews are racists, that is why they built this wall.

This is like Obama blind to the guilt of Islam at Ft. Hood. Last winter these moon-worshipping savages had a field day chopping off heads, and Obama accused Christians of terrible behavior during the Crusades. An American journalist is beheaded by devotees of his beloved Islam, and the president makes the announcement then goes off to play golf.

Presidents Thomas Jefferson and Teddy Roosevelt, who sent the fleet to Morocco when one American was held hostage; President James Monroe who sent Stephen Decatur, Jr. to Algiers, Andy Jackson, none of them would not have responded like that.

In his interview with Ilana Dayan last week, Obama was as silent as Breaking the Silence on smearing the Arabs with guilt for the failure of his beloved "peace" process. It was all Israel's fault. Israel came in for criticism as if Israel is the obstacle to peace.

The Ancient Ones are just begging for peace, but the Jews won't give it to them. That was his message. The Jews are the guilt-bearers.

As for this particular episode of this Breaking the Silence group with its pseudo-indictment of the IDF -- which by the way, for its absence of individual names for individual IDF soldiers allegedly responsible for these crimes, these accusations go global. All IDF soldiers are thus smeared to a degree. As for this latest episode, I think the Israelis should seriously begin to investigate these Israeli citizens in Breaking the Silence under suspicion of having committed high treason.

What comes to mind is Lord Haw-Haw, the infamous British subject who spent World War II living in Hamburg, Germany and broadcasting Nazi propaganda throughout. William Joyce was his name. At war's end, the Brits got their hands on him; put him on trial, found him guilty, and hung the son of a bitch.

And here are these Israeli Jews functioning like collaborators of the medieval Church looking to burn someone at the stake for the crime of being a secret Jew, which punishment also was wonderfully profitable for the Church. The victim's entire property was confiscated. They burnt him, and if he had a home and left a widow and little children, too bad. They were evicted and made homeless.

It is not that I want to see that happen to anyone here, for treason. I would, though, like to put the fear of that possibility into the minds and hearts of these despicable leftists in Breaking the Silence, these malshinim, these slanderers; enough to put a brake on their dastardly, antisemitic behavior.

The big story here last week today was the Orange Telecom business, whose CEO last Wednesday said he would pull out of Israel in 24 hours if he could. Then came the explosion here in Israel, the anger and appeals to the French government. Then came his retraction and apology.

On Friday in Las Vegas, Sheldon Adelson hosted, he and Haim Saban, supporters who gathered to fight the BDS villains. And the linking of hands between these two men -- one the right-winger, the other who set up Martin Indyk in business with his own think-tank -- were brought together by the obvious ugliness of the BDS types who are clearly today's version of antisemites.

Finally, Israelis are coming to see through the smokescreen of alleged tears for the Ancient Ones to the age-old, delusional charges of Jew-haters regardless of the century.

Indeed, there is good news in this bad news, the recrudescence of classical, hallucinatory, baseless hatred of the Jewish people: the awakening of the Jewish people to what's really going on.

It really is getting out of hand. On Friday, JPost wrote up a travel advisory issued by the government in Holland in the matter of Dutch citizens who might be travelling in the West Bank, so-called. They were warned to be on alert. "Demonstrations and violent incidents occur regularly. Jewish colonists live in illegal West Bank settlements and organize demonstrations on the roads. These colonists are sometimes violent. At times, these colonists throw stones at Palestinians and international vehicles so be alert when traveling around settlements of Jewish colonists, especially in the hills around Nablus and Hebron.”

My goodness. Maybe one hears echoes here of the behavior of the Dutch who were colonists in southern Africa, the Boers, and also in Indonesia. The behavior of European Christian colonists like their forefathers is a matter of record. Like the Dutch-speaking Belgians in the Belgian Congo whose behavior inspired the classic Joseph Conrad novella Heart of Darkness, which inspired Francis Ford Coppola's movie Apocalypse Now. The Belgians were notorious for their treatment of the natives in the Congo. They carried around machetes and at the slightest insolence or truculence by a black, they would hack off an arm. They say the Congo was full of thousands of one-armed men. And in Apocalypse Now, Kurtz, played by Marlon Brando, relates an episode in which the Viet Cong, objecting to the inoculation in a village by U.S. troops of the locals against diseases, came in later and hacked off the arms of all those who got the injection.

This description by the Dutch government of “Jewish colonists who throw stones at Balesinians on the roads” is the mindwork of someone in a malarial delirium in the Congo a century ago. First of all, calling us Jews here “colonists,” as Jimmy Carter does, is so bizarre for our lives bear no resemblance to say the French in Viet Nam with their rubber plantations or the Dutch in Malaysia. There are no natural resources here that we are mining to ship back to a home country. We are not in a foreign land. We in Judea are Jews -- and that is where the word comes from. The Balesinians claim to be the indigenous people, but if so, why do they speak Arabic, which is indigenous to the Arabian Peninsula? If anything, they are the colonists representing the Arab Empire. We are the indigenous people under attack by these Muslim imperialists.

But it is we who are seen by Carter and the Dutch government as colonists, strangers in a strange land.

In the meantime, we remain the targets of our barbaric neighbors who have fired these albeit solitary rockets at us over the last week or so, and even today I think there was one. The IDF has moved another Iron Dome battery into Ashqelon.

And why has this latest attack surfaced? According to the MSM here, in an analysis that exhibits the character of these barbarians, it seems that in Gaza, HAMAS is seen by ISIS types as weak and collaborationist for keeping the ceasefire. This is classic behavior in Araby. Every regime has its rebels who accuse the reigning clique of being lapsed, bad, corrupt Muslims. In a word, HAMAS is too conservative for the ISIS devotees in the Strip who know Israel's policy that every rocket fired gets an answer, and since Israel huffs and puffs it holds HAMAS responsible for every rocket, the air force attacks some empty HAMAS structures and destroys them.

In other words, the rockets fired at us these days are meant to get the IDF to attack HAMAS. Thus do these ISIS savages involve us in their fratricidal, endless fights to the death.

Sort of like what's going on in Syria these days and has been for years. Not only have there been groups fighting the Assad, Jr. regime, they fight each other. It sounds like Lebanon during its numerous local gang wars in the 1970s and 80s between PLO cells against one another and PLO cells against local Lebanese Sunnis, and PLO cells bullying local Shiites who raised their own armed groups to fight back.

As of last week, we were told that as the invading ISIS Sunnis in Syria are there to conquer Syria and depose Assad the Alawite, for the time being Assad's air force is helping ISIS in fighting in Aleppo against the Sunni rebels. In other words, Assad and ISIS are collaborating against their common enemy.

Though in reading these reports I wonder just what is it they are fighting over in Aleppo which years ago now was already photographed to be a city in ruins, like Berlin in 1945 or something? What are they fighting over if not just local control of the ruins?

Well, the situation is sort of like that in Gaza these days. HAMAS bullies the Fatah faction. HAMAS and Islamic Jihad are targets of ISIS types who see them as old fogies who should be waging jihad against al-Yahud, but they are not, and that shows they are bad Muslims who deserve to be toppled from power.

You know what? If all these different groups, and others not mentioned, like Jabhat al-Nusra and Ansar Bayt al-Maqdis, are difficult to keep straight, don't worry about it. Forget their names which allude to some doctrine. These are just pre-Islamic Arab tribesmen who have been fighting one another like this from time immemorial.

And that was adapted from Psalm 69:14.

Speaking before of the ever-shifting, oddball alliances in Araby, the current chaos and slaughter which is very much attributable to the Destroyer in the Oval Office, a.k.a. the Angel of Death a.k.a. Barack Obama, it is now a matter of public record that Israel is collaborating with Saudi Arabia of all countries, and vice versa. Truly a world turned upside down.

Last Thursday in Washington at the Council of Foreign Relations, Israel's new director-general of the Foreign Ministry, Dore Gold, met with a former Saudi general, one Anwar Eshki, though nowhere in the MSM did I see mention of Dore Gold's book published 12 years ago Hatred's Kingdom: How Saudi Arabia Supports the New Global Terrorism.

And here we are today looking in the MSM at a picture of these two men shaking hands. That is what the current situation in the region has come to thanks mostly to the Evil One in the White House who is getting his way. This liar who has said at least as many as times he will not let Iran get an atomic bomb as he said, "If you like your doctor you can keep your doctor," it has been his goal since his first day in office when he made his first call as president to the Holocaust Denier and accomplice to many murders. Obama wants to see a nuclear Iran for only a nuclear Iran can put the fear of Allah into the perfidious Jews.

Yesterday and not for the first time in recent months, a major player here in Israel, in this case the former PM and FM and Chief of Staff Ehud Barak, warned that we face a potential slaughter – my word, not his -- of 4,000 people – his number, if and when Hezbollah in southern Lebanon lets fly its missiles.

There have been reports for months of Hezbollah being supplied by Iran with more and better missiles, all now GPS-equipped. Barak was trying, I think, to tell the people, to get your safety rooms and bomb shelters in working order. Israeli building codes require such safe rooms in all dwellings, and commonly Israelis cannot resist using them as storerooms for all kinds of stuff and junk they should throw but don't.

We haven't lost that many people since the War of Independence in 1948-49, and of course given the thriving, modern country we have built with ten times the number of people and who knows how many new structures, the destruction could be frightful.

And in the middle of this rising tension and fear of the coming missile barrage from the north -- Israel simply cannot prevent that -- on Friday in the Washington Times, Bill Gertz reported on a secret, strategic document called Presidential Study Directive-11, produced in 2011, that saw the Muslim Brotherhood as a moderate alternative to more violent Islamic groups. In a nutshell, the strategy was to support the Muslim Brotherhood as the best alternative to those other radical extremists.

Well, I for one am not surprised. Obama's behavior at that time was clearly in support of the Brotherhood in its toppling of Mubarak, and in Libya against Qaddafi.

Frank Gaffney of his own think tank has identified key advisors to Obama as Brotherhood-linked. Hillary Clinton's Gal Friday's Saudi family is riddle with these Islamists.

Gertz also cited Egyptian press reports of CIA and Muslim Brotherhood cooperation after Mubarak was deposed, after the head of the Brotherhood was sprung from prison and took over as president.

Speaking before of the treasonous slanderers in Israel, they are like soulmates for what Obama and his staffers like Ben Rhodes have been doing to the United States. They are enemies of decades of U.S. foreign policy in the Middle East, those two. As Shimon Peres and Rabin turned Israeli policy of decades upside down when they decided to shake Arafat's bloody paw, which betrayal hounds us to this very day, so Barack Hussein Obama has, like a good Muslim, stabbed the American people in the back, as he surely has stabbed us in the back with his shepherding Iran toward joining the nuclear club.

On the other hand, let's give him the benefit of the doubt. Let us withhold any malevolence on his part in suspended animation. He may just be profoundly stupid to think the Muslim Brotherhood is a force for moderation.

If he so, he is not malevolent but just a first class fool.
