Shalom laYehudim, Shalom laBnai Noach, Shalom laGoyim. It is the evening of the 2nd day, kaf-dales beNissan, Parashas Kedoshim, tav-shin-ayin-vav, the evening of the 1st day, Sunday, 1 May 2016, webcasting from the spiritual center of the world.

I mean, it is the eternal, spiritual center, others come and go. For some four hundred years the sun never set on the globe-encircling British Empire but since the end of World War II, the British have shrunk back to their island kingdom and have inflicted on themselves an enemy population of Muslims within, and this may contribute to the burgeoning outbreaks of antiJew hatred in the UK; that was the top story in Israel today.

One after the other, it seems, Labour MKs are coming out of the woodwork, or as Labour MK Wes Streeting sadly said, "It is like lifting up a stone and having insects crawl out" -- that is how he described this series of outbursts of antiJew hatred within the Labour Party.

A month ago, remember, Vicki Kirby, a branch manager, was suspended from the party for tweeting that "Jews have big noses" and "Hitler was the god of the Zionists."

Two months ago, the head of the student Labour group at Oxford University resigned in response the burgeoning antisemitism in his group. He said the Left "has a problem with Jews."

Then we have this MK Naz Shah saying the Jews in Israel must be transferred to the United States.

And of course, former London Mayor Ken Livingstone chimed in by saying this week that Hitler supported the Zionists -- and thereby smeared Zionism with Nazism.

Last week at the UN as well, the PLO representative Riyad Mansour called a press conference to tongue-lash Israel for calling "all the Balestinian beople who have legitimate rights to resist the occupation in legitimate ways 'terrorists.'" He too would link Israel to Nazi Germany and the Balestinian "freedom fighters" he likened to Jews fighting the Nazis in the Warsaw Ghetto.

Once again, we see the inherent thievery in Arab culture. As the Koran is a plagiarized, stolen copy of the Torah, so all the imagery here is Jewish history too, stolen and twisted like the Koran.

The smearing of Jews with the behaviors of Nazis is simply delusional. There is no comparison whatsoever. Like the delusion that Israel is an apartheid society, when that was all about skin color and Israel has no such laws. Antisemitism in all generations is expressed in lies, false accusations of Jews committing crimes they don't commit.

There is this need out there at this time for antiJews, addicted to their hatred, to double down on calling Israelis Nazis.

Not that it is new. In my book, I show how TIME Magazine in its first cover story on the new State of Israel, in August 1948, snidely insinuated that these new Israelis, were in the "Prussian" mode --hint-hint, wink-wink -- the new Jewish soldiers were the local version of Nazi storm troopers in their conquest of the Arabians.

The war for Israel is a war on several planes, in several dimensions at the same time. One is Israel's physical safety threatened by 550 million people on three sides, most of them Muslims, whose religion is a form of antisemitism.

It also is a war for civilization against barbarism, which Leftists refuse to admit still exists. There are cultures out that still deserve the classification "barbaric" and for sure, Islam deserves that name with its head-choppings and hand-choppings, the capture of non-Muslims and using them as sex toys, girls and boys alike. Islam, whose highest scholars in Al Azhar in Cairo have yet to denounce ISIS, for a literal reading of the Koran most certainly justifies their horrors. A case might be made that the greatest head-chopper of all was Muhammed himself, which is why Al-Azhar has no criticism of ISIS.

And in this war for civilization attacked by barbarians, one bottom line component is the war for sanity over insanity, the denial of reality and truth.

This is one facet of the war against Israel in our time. For example, we saw a couple of weeks ago how UNESCO voted on language denying the historical connection between the Jewish people and Jerusalem. This is a form of madness, I think.

For fourteen centuries, the Muslims boasted ownership of the Temple Mount because they agreed it was the Temple Mount of the Jews that they had captured which is proof that Allah loves Muslims more than Jews; that Muslims had become the new chosen people and now had the covenant.

Then in the year 2000, Arafat denied the history of the two Temples, and since then it has become Muslim Orthodoxy. You don't like the past? Deny it ever happened.

For forty years, the leader of the Arabs in Jerusalem Haj Amin al-Husseini after WWI said there was no such country as Palestine, and he was right. The Muslims had no map in their heads of this country called Falastin as they call it today. There is no mention of Falastin in the Koran. Today they claim to the putatively prehistoric Balestinians living here since the beginning of time until the Jews after World War II invaded and stole their country from them.

This too is madness. It was madness when Hitler ranted in German beer halls in the 1920s that Germany had lost the war because the Jews had stabbed Germany in the back. That was a lie and so is the entirety of Palestinian Nationalism. It is one humongous lie about history, one after the other, and for sure the Arab accusation today is joined by other Jew-haters like Ken Livingstone who calls Jews "Nazis." This is another lie and no healthy community can live by lies.

Last week, YNET reported on the attempt by an Arab documentary filmmaker to make a film about the Munich Olympic Games massacre in 1972 from the Balestinian point of view. He approached Ilana Romano, widow of Yosef, the weightlifter whom we recently learned was, when tied up as a hostage, castrated by these barbarians. Ilana, of course, spurned the request because the filmmaker called the barbarians who orchestrated that horror "freedom fighters" instead of terrorists.

In this the war against Israel by principally the Muslims but also their antiJew backers in the West, what is at stake is civilized morality, civilized, human morality vs. the horrors of these living, fossil pagan savages with the morality of man before the Great Flood.

So at the UN the PLO mouthpiece called a press conference to denounce Israel for labelling legitimate Balestinian resistance to an occupying power as terrorism. And in fact over four decades now the UN as a body has never been able to agree on a definition of terrorism because the Muslims, the largest bloc, refuse to include what they do to the Jews as terrorism. In their ethical universe, they have the right to do to us whatever they want.

And further to this: whenever the Jews hit back, when we arrest a terrorist, kill a terrorist, we have no right to do that either. Jewish self-defense is illegal because the Jewish presence is illegal.

There is an abyss, an unbridgeable chasm, separating Judeo-Christian civilization and Arab-Muslim culture. Like mixing oil and water, they don't mix, which is why Muslims should never have been allowed to establish themselves in the West, to build mosques, etc. Islam is a polygamous culture and the ramifications for society of that are immense and overwhelmingly negative.

These people live in an intellectual world with no fidelity to truth e.g. saying that Israelis act like Nazis toward Balestinians. They deny after 14 centuries of bragging that the Temple Mount was in their hands, then turn on a dime and declare the Jews never had any Temples on Haram a-Sharif -- what they call the “Noble Enclosure.”

With people like this, the idea of writing a peace treaty and expecting them to abide by it is lunacy. Oslo was lunacy. Arafat and Abbas and friends were up to their armpits in warm, innocent, butchered Jewish blood, and only Leftist blockheads like Peres, Beilin and Rabin believed it was possible to go into business with such people.

Yes, the fashion of public, open and shameless Jew-hatred has returned to the public square in a way we have not seen in 70 years.

At Harvard Law School the other day, during a panel discussion, an Arab dissembler and/or historic illiterate, one Husam al-Qoulaq claiming to be a Balestinian -- even though there is nothing Palestinian about him -- addressed former Israeli ministress Tsipi Livni and called her “smelly.”

And when protests arose against him for his insult, 11 Harvard law students wrote a letter backing him, some Jews among them for sure. They said he had become “the victim of a vicious smear campaign” and by implication had every right to call Livni “smelly.”

He and his defenders claim that he was ignorant of the centuries-old canard that Jews had a vile smell about them, but no matter. He himself exposed himself to be on the same plane intellectually and spiritually as those in generations past who would call out “Dirty Jew!” It is the response of a barbarian who has neither facts nor logic to defend his warped interpretation of reality and history.

And that there are Jews among his backers at Harvard Law should not surprise. They are everywhere. On every campus, one imagines, there are Jews who have “jumped ship,” so to speak, and joined the antiJews in their delusional accusations flung at Israel.

I think one of the neglected facets of the Leftist character structure accounts for these political views and that is their cowardice. I think many of these anti-Israel, assimilated Jews are just terribly frightened by the rising tide of Jew-hatred and escape the threat by crossing over to the Jew-killers’ side to cheer them as a form of self-defense. They cheer on, for example, such as the new head of the National Union of Students in the UK, a Muslim woman from Algeria who shamelessly calls for the murder of Jews at random in Israel in the name of “resisting the occupation” a.k.a. the “armed struggle” a.k.a. “freedom-fighting.” Barbarians have no conception of a civilized person’s horror at Islam’s acts of terror. For Muslim barbarians like her, anything goes against your enemy.

Of course, she says that her people are just resisting occupation but of course, even before 1967 the Arabs in Judea and Samaria were murdering Jews at random too, like the hundreds killed in the so-called Arab Revolt in Mandatory Palestine in the 1930s. Since the Arabs in those years 1936-39 denied there was such a country as Palestine brought to life by the League of Nations, which decision they vigorously opposed to the point of murder, those three years are called the Arab Revolt because the locals did not yet claim to be Balestinians. That antisemitic fantasy had yet to be sucked out of a water pipe packed with killer hash.

But I digress. The two worst cases of this terrible flight from Jewishness into the arms of the enemy so far are that of Simone Zimmerman, who worked for Bernie Sanders, who got to Berkeley in 2009 a committed lover of Israel but within a year, in some kind of hysterical transformation, became a J Street leader and fell in step with the BDS movement.

In the worst case, an Israeli shlikha, a Jewish Agency representative working through the Hillel House at Berkeley, who was raised in a dati-leumi/national religious home, was so influenced by the Hillel atmosphere she returned to Israel, went to Ramallah, converted to Islam and married an Arabian.

This kind of flip-flop overnight is less the sign of “seeing the light” than succumbing to outside pressures including the rising tide of Jew-hatred. At Berkeley, it is of course in full bloom via hating Israel as a substitute for hating Jews. In the past, it was for killing Jesus but that’s old hat. In every generation, there has always been a good reason, the accusation of committing a monstrous crime, to plague the Jews, and in our time, it is the fairy tale saga of the Ancient Palestinians who had their ancient homeland stolen from them.

Only now the agent of these acts of apostasy on these campuses are the Hillel Houses, functionally an arm of the Reform movement, so this should not surprise. These so-called Reform Jews are so far off the rails, the Jewish rails of history, they are lost to the Jewish people, like these two unfortunate girls. What a toxic atmosphere it must be in the Berkeley Hillel House and every Hillel on campuses today.

Antisemitism is erupting again, like an unpredictable volcano, only this time, with the really weird twist of Jew-haters denying they are Jew-haters. That has never happened before. It is just the Zionists that they don’t like, they say. They don’t support the Zionist state and judge Zionists to be evil doers – but not all Jews.

This is like saying I’ve got nothing against the people in the United States and Canada, it is just North Americans I can’t stand. This is thought twisted and wrung out until its meaning has been lost.

Peter Beinart once protested in his column that antisemitism and anti-Zionist are not the same, and I say only a fool in denial like him thinks that, plays this word-game in their heads. Zionism was the movement to create a Jewish majority state in the Jews’ historic homeland, for everywhere they lived for thousands of years outside of it they were in the minority and subject to abuse in vary degrees of magnitude.

Those who say they are not antisemites, only anti-Zionists, are say the Jews have no right to become a self-governing majority. They must remain a minority and bear the burdens of that status. It's a word-game when people say, "I am not an antisemite, only against the State of Israel that has no right to exist!"

What may also be at work, what surely is at work, is the Hand of G-d Who has a record of allowing antisemitic hatred to well up whenever the Jews get too comfortable among the gentiles and assimilate out via intermarriage.

Read the books of Ezra and Nehemiah about the problem. Remember that preceding the Nazi Holocaust, there was a century of mass conversions in Germany against which, ironically, Reform Judaism attempted to deter.

Once again though, it seems, antiJew words are back in fashion in public, and once again a major facet of the non-Orthodox Jews in the West is assimilating out at the speed of light.

I think cowardice is a major motivation for these people.

Well, I must say that I read the transcript of Donald Trump's foreign policy speech last week, his first scripted speech, and I confess I agreed with everything he said. And as I listened, I was wondering who wrote this speech. It could have been by John Bolton, former US UN ambassador. I wasn't expecting such a speech and that is because I have focused on the domestic side of Donald Trump and have been no fan of that. I find him vulgar. He is no conservative on social issues. I find his attacks on his opponents ugly.

But when it comes to foreign affairs, with many saying he had no competence in these matters, I was more than surprised. If this reflects his views, he's got my vote.

He spoke the truth about Obama that was right on target. He said, He "dislikes our friends and bows to our enemies, something we have never seen before in the history of our country...He has treated Iran with tender loving care and made it a great power. He has not been a friend to Israel...if President Obama's goal had been to weaken America, he could not have done a better job."

Above all, I liked the following: "I will work with our Allies to reinvigorate Western values and institutions. Instead of trying to spread universal values that not everybody shares or wants, we should understand that strengthening and promoting Western civilization and its accomplishments will do more to inspire positive reforms around the world than military interventions."

Bravo. This is a recognition that the US cannot be in the business of “nation-building,” the fatal error of the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan. The aspiration to repel an enemy and then build a bulwark against him by teaching the Muslims in both countries how to run Western-style liberal democracy is a fool’s game.

America was at its finest in invading Iraq to bring down Saddam, a true monster to his people, but began its descent to America at its worst by sticking around and trying to create a friendly democracy in its place. Immediately after capturing him, the US should have high-tailed it out of Iraq and left the locals to big up the pieces.

Overall, then, I thought Trump’s foreign policy speech was a major breath of fresh air after eight years of this Muslim Communist and his nefarious machinations. In 2012 at the UN, he said he did not want a world in which it was okay to slander the Prophet of Islam, so two years later when Charlie Hebdo’s staffers were massacred for ridiculing the Prophet, Obama refused to participate in the mass demonstration, thus sending the message that he was on the side of the killers in the matter of not insulting the Prophet.

He is also still bent on not only closing Guantanamo as a prison for Muslim terrorists -- an expression he refuses to use -- but also, I think, the entire installation and returning it all to Cuba after more than a century in American hands. And then Cuba can lease it out to the Russians or Iranians. He would like that, I’m sure.

So on foreign policy I will have no trouble voting for Donald Trump assuming he wins the nomination.

But his domestic politics, in sharp contrast, scare me. Thus far he seems on the side of the mentally disordered who think so-called “transgender” people can use whatever public toilet they choose.

Historian Ken Spiro in his book World Perfect makes the case, and he is not the first, that the two great empires of antiquity Greece and Rome both sunk beneath the waves of history because they became sexually degenerate -- a fine word that, “degenerate,” -- which is now painfully out of fashion. It literally refers to the reality that sexual deviants addicted to their perversions do not reproduce. They don’t generate the next generation. They are into a non-generative mode of existence, a de-generate mode.

It was madness last summer when the US Supreme Court threw holy water on men marrying men and women marrying women. In both cases, these unions cannot result in the birth of any children, for both strip the pleasure of conjugal relations from its principle purpose which is making babies and producing the next generation.

It is no coincidence that three of the five U.S. Supreme Court judges who voted for this abomination are deJudaized Jews. Shame on them and shame on the Jewish people.
