Shalom laYehudim, Shalom laBnai Noach, Shalom laGoyim. It is the evening of the 6th day, kaf-vav beIyyar, Parashas BaMidbar, tav-shin-ayin-vav, the evening of the 5th day, Thursday, 2 June 2016, webcasting from the Land of Israel, homeland of the Chosen People, and everybody knows it, but most can't admit it.

There is absolutely no doubt that the Jews are the Chosen People, when tomorrow in Paris the ministers of two dozen states will gather to sermonize to one another on a land dispute covering some 2,000 square miles, Judea and Samaria. There are surely lots of property disputes like it in the world, border disputes between countries. I think the Chad-Libya border contains a territory larger than the entire State of Israel that is contested by those two states.

Morocco and Algeria have been wrestling over old Spanish Morocco since 1975. The Russians took the Kirile Islands in the last days of WWII and Japan still wants them back.

But none of these and other land disputes gets the attention that ours does. After all, what is the dispute here if not who owns Judea and Samaria? Is it the Arabs? Or is it the Jews? No other land dispute on the planet gets the attention this one does and not because the world loves the "Palestinians." There is nothing to love because there is nothing there, as their National Museum by its emptiness shows. The attention is solely negative and rooted in the hostility to the Jewish people that has existed in every generation as mankind as a whole, no less than G-d, singles out the Jewish people for special treatment given to no other people. It is the goyim who prove we are the Chosen People by their behavior.

And what other land dispute between two parties has dozens of nations arrogating the right to dictate to the two sides a solution? I still think Israel should announce tomorrow that it is convening a conference of dozens of experts on France and Islam to discuss how the conferees think that France should handle its Muslim community because they are not doing a very good job of it.

I find it interesting how the French, even friendly ones like Emanuel Walls, do not see how insulting their behavior is. We are not some newly-decolonized Third World society. We don't tell France how to manage its affairs in Corsica, and we don't need their views on how we deal with the Muslims here. The arrogance of all these states tomorrow in Paris to think they understand the situation here better than we do...

And there is something else at work here: It is the ancient aggression against the Jews who greedily hold onto their special covenant with G-d, when all people should have a special covenant with G-d. What is Christianity if not the claim that Christians are the real Jews who have a special covenant too? They say that the old Jews didn't recognize their Messiah and lost their covenant for that; the Jews destroyed their covenant by their disregard of the Messiah and Christians took over. It is simply greedy of the Jews to think they alone should rule in Jerusalem.

Islam in its violent core also makes the charge that the Jews used to be the Chosen People but now Muslims are. That is why they built the golden Dome of the Rock smack dab on what they believed to be the site of the Jewish Temples. This was proof for them of the defeat of Judaism by Islam as the correct religion, the real monotheistic revelation through its greatest prophet, greater than Abraham, greater than Moses, Muhammad, peace be upon him. Both stepchild religions, Christianity and Islam, claim to have superseded the original version.

The Roman Catholic Church defines itself as Verus Israel, the True Israel, and Islam claims 100% ownership of Haram a-Sharif, both unwittingly acting out their deepest fear that we Jews are indeed the Chosen People, whose special treasure they must have too.

The Jews are cliquish and clannish and greedy and won't share their special covenant. And both Islam and what's left of Christendom are determined not to let the Jews enjoy uncontested rule over the Land and Jerusalem that the Jews won fair and square in 1967.

Everybody wants a piece of the action; everyone wants to have his finger in the pie. Those two dozen goy foreign ministers tomorrow in Paris will be there to exercise whatever power they can to prevent the Jews from continuing to dominate the Arabs in Judea and Samaria. That is a major no-no. When King Abdallah and King Hussein ruled in Judea and Samaria, there was not one complaint raised in the United Nations by Arab countries, by Muslim countries, demanding independence for the “Palestinians.” There were no “Palestinians” then. No Arab state, no Muslim state, no Communist state for two decades said a word about the national rights to independence of the historic “Palestinians” – and never mind the League of Nations Mandate explicitly cited the Palestine that they were going to create as the “historic homeland of the Jewish people.” No mention at all of any “Palestinians.”

And here we are today almost a half-century past the Six-Day War and the international strife of today’s “Israel-Palestinian Conflict remains the UN’s No. 1 concern, judged by the number of man-hours spent on it. And it is all about, as the UN sees the situation, the refusal of the Jews to share their country with another nation that says it is their ancient homeland too.

When did the world get so crazy? The so-called Israeli-Palestinian Conflict is as fraudulent as the “Palestinian” identity to begin with. And if you doubt that, then check out the link posted with this webcast. It is 8-minutes-and-some long and worth every second. I wish I had a transcript of the translation of this Egyptian intellectual living and working in Germany whose every sentence deserves praise for pointing out facts and truths about Islam. He is like a Gatling gun shooting out bullets of his story and truth, every one a bull’s eye.

He confirms my own view that antiJewism is functionally a mental disorder. He uses the term “fixation” and points out how the very idea of the Jew causes some kind of “mental reaction” in the minds of Muslims and recognizes that it is right there at the birth of that religion.

He correctly dismisses the Protocols of the Elders of Zion as a forgery; he rejects Islam’s daily prayers that include curses against non-Muslims. He mocks the fraudulent claim that Islam is a tolerant religion. He hits on the identity crisis that Muslims suffer vis-à-vis Jews and Christians. He rightly credits Muhammad’s exposure to the Jews in Medina and their laws that had him promulgating the very idea of laws too, including the Jewish law against eating pigs, which made no sense because the Arabs had no pigs to eat.

He mentions the jezyya, the special tax on the Jews for the right to continue to practice Judaism, which was also a punishment for not converting to Islam and also a way to humiliate them. He pinpoints how this poison in Islam about Jews is eating them up.

So please put me on hold, on pause. Open another broadcast, return to DPP and open this link. Then get back to me. It is spot on.

Okay. I hope this video is seen by as many Arabs and Muslims as possible. He is dead on when saying, as I always have, this is not about statehood for “Palestinians” that the Jews won’t give them but statehood for Jews that the Muslims won’t give them.

So the top story in Israel today was this conference tomorrow in Paris of these gentiles wanting a hand in the destiny of the Holy Land, none of them happy with exclusive Jewish rule. The Jews must share their allegedly mutually beloved, mutually ancient homeland with the Ancient Palestinians.

This calls to mind a short story by the anti-religious Yiddish writer Shalom Aleichem called Der Gymnazijeh, meaning the High School in turn of the 20th century Czarist Russia, which was not a public, government institution. They were all private in those days. One had to apply for acceptance and pay tuition, and many of these schools would not accept Jews at all. Some, though, if a Jewish parent forked over enough cash, he could enroll his son. In one school, a Jewish father could enroll his son only by agreeing to pay tuition for a gentile boy as well.

Also in my memory bank is one of the great films about the Holocaust in a Polish village, The Shop of Main Street in which we see how the invading Nazis forced themselves into Jewish businesses and made a shop owner accept a local Nazi sympathizer as his partner in business.

So tomorrow in Paris dozens of goy foreign ministers will gather in the belief they have the right to dictate to Israel its future. In Haaretz yesterday, there was a report on the concluding statement of the conference being finalized and it determines that the “Israeli-Palestinian conflict is the key issue in the Middle East. The conflict creates precariousness and insecurity. It fuels radical rhetoric and extremist violence. Moving toward its resolution is as urgent as ever.”

And there you have it: this is the world according to Jimmy Carter, the world according to James Baker and legions of other antiJews who share the Arab-Muslim belief that all the instability, all the extremist violence, all the radical rhetoric in the Middle East is traceable to this conflict in which all enlightened people know is the Jews’ fault. The Middle East is as violent as it is because of the Jews who won’t return Palestine to its rightful “Palestinian” owners.

This will be the collective mind at work tomorrow in Paris for dozens of the world’s most important diplomats, foreign ministers, who in conference assembled will collectively point the finger of guilt at the Jews for our crucifixion of the original, authentic, lords of Palestine whose entire ancient homeland we stole.

Prime Minister Netanyahu keeps repeating that there will be no peace without direct talks between Israel and the “Palestinians,” as he resists what is to happen tomorrow. These international gabfests only work to strengthen the “Palestinians,” he says -- as he continues to foolishly call them -- in their opposition to peace with Israel.

It is no secret that tomorrow the conferees will sign off on language that pleases the Arab Muslims here.

Making matters no better, Minister of Finance Moshe Kahlon is talking of the resumption of peace talks. Things are going on behind the scenes, he has implied, and how hopeful he is that a regional peace conference can convene in which Israel and Arab states discuss their common concerns. He also says he has good contacts in Ramallah and that he is fostering the “Palestinian” economy which is an Israeli interest.

I doubt Moshe Kahlon has seen the video you just did of this Egyptian intellectual. I doubt he senses the depth of the irrational hatred that pervades Islam and has poisoned it toward Jews since the beginning of Islam.

I think I’ve mentioned over the years how when I first got interested in this culture, I believed what turned out to be propagandistic nonsense: that antisemitism was a uniquely Euro-Christian phenomenon and that Muslims were much more tolerant of Jews. But in reading the histories of Jewish communities in Islam, the first conclusion was not long in coming: Islam in practice was no less an oppressor of Jews than Christianity, if not in identical ways.

But the more I delved into the material, Islam emerged as not a religion like Christianity with an antisemitic dimension, which in Christendom was never the whole story. Islam emerged as less an antisemitic religion than a religion of antisemitism.

And this truth likely helps account for the phenomenon since 1948 of Christians who have survived, so to speak, the return of the Jews who were supposed to be homeless until Jesus returned, versus Islam which cannot survive the rebirth of the Jewish commonwealth and rule in Jerusalem and again over the Temple Mount.

In other words, contrary to the hopes and aspirations of the original secular Zionists that included the end of antisemitism, the birth of Israel has clearly not done that. And that is why tomorrow in Paris all those goy diplomats will gather to talk about what they want to order the Jews to do now. Telling us where we could and could not live was the ordinary work of their forebears for generations.

Like an addiction. They just can’t give up telling us where we can and cannot live. We are not, as we claim, the landlords of Balesstine in their minds. We must share it with the sons of Ishmael.

Which is a recipe for endless strife, which is what I think these goy antiJews want anyway.

In addition to this gathering of nations opposed to Jewish rule in Judea, Samaria and Jerusalem, there are other concentrations of antiJew groups like the Mideast Quartet of the US, Russia, the EU foreign affairs bureaucracy and the United Nations. Tony Blair was their man in Jerusalem. Remember the Quartet? Haven’t heard much of them lately.

So tomorrow, a new gathering of states will focus on the State of Israel and its belligerent refusal to return land it stole from the Ancient Ones. This will be another gathering for the record books. There must be by now legions of these conferences and summit meetings, and peace talks and not just between us and the Arabs here but the whole world. At the UN, they never stop talking about Israel. In Brussels in the EU, that is true too.

The Arab League of States as well in their meetings never stops choosing to talk about the Chosen People. The Islamic Cooperation Council of States too surely spends time in every meeting focused on the Jews' Promised Land.

Their obsession is proof of Jewish truth.
