Shalom laYehudim, Shalom laBnai Noach, Shalom laGoyim. It is the evening of the 4th day, bes beSivan, Parashas Naso, tav-shin-ayin-vav, the evening of the 3rd day, Tuesday, 7 June 2016, webcasting from the land of truth, which is why the Arabs must not rule here.

Truth for them is as worthless as the sand beneath their sandals.

The Land of Israel is a land of truth, home of the truest book in the history of writing, the Torah miSinai.

My alma mater Columbia University was and may still be, I do not know, famous for its core curriculum, courses required of all students in the first year, year and a half, of college, which was a survey of Western civilization starting with the Greeks, Homer, the Greek tragedians, Aristotle, Plato, etc. It was a terrific foundation for continued learning, but not for years would the choice of starting with the Greeks be understood, at least by yours truly, as an antiJew choice. Not a vicious one but a deletion nonetheless of the history of the Jews who preceded the Christendom that is the pinnacle of the civilization that they were preaching. Precede the Greeks and the Romans...

Bu there is nothing like the Torah for longevity. Who is reading Aristotle these days? That is the definition of a classic. Paul Johnson, the great British journalist-historian, said it was a book with the amazing ability to introduce a character in the shortest number of words and bring him to life on the page; like a pop-up book for children. This is the highest form of literary praise.

Indeed, yours truly became a Believer after reading the Torah and being bowled over by its brilliance in so many ways: its psychological depth and complexity; its dialogue that out-Shakespeares Shakespeare. I concluded it is too good to be what I was taught that it was at Columbia: the work of man, even a committee of rabbis.

Of course, the idea that it really was dictated on Mt. Sinai to Moses was never taken seriously. The study of the Bible in universities worldwide is a debunking tradition. The purpose of its highest-level research is to argue that this verse or that word was pilfered from a pre-existing culture. The official line is that the Five Books were written by multiple authors and only after the return from Babylon did a cabal of rabbis stitch all the different versions together and foist it on the gullible Jews as the unitary work of one man, Moses, at Mt. Sinai.

Well, whatever its origin, there can be no denying that from between its pages came the Jewish people and their lifetime of thousands of years, an extraordinary history, but also Christianity and Christendom. Over a billion Christians in the world today, more than a billion Muslims too come from this book.

So I began to believe the Torah was what it purported be: the greatest story of a people containing everything such as laws for daily living, breathtakingly beautiful poetry, philosophy ethics, psychology, sex and war.

But what really tipped the scales for yours truly was reading the story of Avraham and Sarah, Yitzhak, and above all Hagar and Ishmael and studying the insights of our greatest commentators: Rashi, Shimshon Raphael Hirsch, the Ramban, Sforno, etc. In the barest minimum of verses and words, the Torah paints a portrait of Ishmael as he was way back, which is as on target, spot on, today a description of the Arabs as you could want.

Having read by the time I began to study Torah shelves of books on the Arabs, their history, anthropology and religion written by PhDs in their fields, all good and useful, but, I discovered, that the deepest, most penetrating understanding of the Arabs today can be found in the story of Ishmael. It is the paradigm of the Arab character to this day and the ultimate feat of concision, found in the Midrash, where Ishmael is described as a thief. This is his essential character.

So please now, put me on pause and open another browser, log on to DPP, download the posted link that contains three videos, each a minute and a few second long. The first is the famous doctor of history Abbas, the second and third the PA's Minister of Religious Affairs, Habbash. And after watching them, you will know why the prospect of peace with these people is generations in the future. Maybe not even until Moshiach arrives and sprinkles them with fairy dust or something, and changes them.

So put me on pause please, open the link, watch the three brief videos, then get to me.

Okay, what you have just seen I think is proof positive of the truth that these Arabs are in their essential core thieves, for every statement and claim made by these moon-worshipping lunatics was stolen from us, from the Jewish people.

Through thousands of years of history, the Middle East was known as deserts plagued by Bedouin robbers, brigands who preyed on passersby. Indeed, writing in 11th century France, Rashi described Ishmael's fate after being expelled from Abraham's tents with one word: listim. He became a highwayman, one who preys on people in transit.

In 1867, Mark Twain visited the Land of Israel and discovered on arrival in Jaffa that to get to Jerusalem you had to hire not only beasts of burden but armed guards, for the countryside was home to roving bands of Arab marauders.

In 1939, Hollywood produced a state-of-the-art special effects movie called The Thief of Baghdad based on A Thousand and One Nights, the only book besides the Qur'an to make it into world literature, in which film the hero is a street thief, albeit a lovable one, a scamp, because the Arabs have a hole in their conscience when it comes to theft. The hero may be a little thief but he is cute and cunning and this makes the Arabs smile.

And then there is that one piece of Sharia law that everybody knows. In the homeland of Muhammad, a thief has his hand chopped off. The Arabs are world famous for this behavior which unwittingly also shines a light on the ubiquity of theft in this society, the centrality of theft to their culture.

And here are these two Arabs in these videos in suits and ties worn by Westerners still displaying their essence as thieves and in this case of Zionism, lock, stock and barrel of lox.

I watched the two of them slack-jawed for their accusations against us as thieves of this land that had been theirs from time immemorial, which is the Jewish claim. And in their habitual larceny and utter contempt for truth, they concoct the fantasy that even before Abraham was here, they were. They reference the Philistines about whom almost nothing is known except what is gleaned from the Torah, and make the false claim that they are descendants of the Philistines, an impossibility judging by everything known from history. A thousand years separate the disappearance of the Philistines from the arrival of the Arabs.

But no matter. What I found fascinating, especially in the hysterical, hateful ranting of Habbash the Religion Minister, was the utter disregard for the very concept of facts and artifacts from history to make such pronouncements. On the basis of zero evidence, this lunatic just invents history because in his universe, all that matters is belief. History is what you believe it to be, what you imagine it to be, and invent a scenario in the past that will serve you in the present. Screaming that we Jews are thieves is, to my way of thinking, pure psychological projection, right there before our very eyes. His accusations hurled at us are confessions of his own theft of Jewish history, culture and belief.

I wonder how many of you (almost all of you are in the States) saw coverage in your local newspaper and TV station of that Museum of Palestine mentioned a couple of weeks ago, the inauguration this 24-million-dollar building in which there is not one artifact in one room or gallery of this allegedly ancient “Palestinian” people.

And it bothers yours truly greatly that the government of Israel is so silent when this news item should be blared around the world from every Israeli embassy and consulate, fed to local newspapers and TV stations with the brief explanation that this is perfect evidence of the hoax of the “Palestinian” nation.

Oh, well. Maybe sometime in the future they will do that.

Yes, the foregoing thoughts on Ishmael and what can be learned from these videos persuades yours truly and not for the first time that with such men, an amicable compromise is simply not in the cards possible. There is an abyss separating the two peoples when we have the leaders we have and they the leaders they have.

This should have been understood 23 years ago by Israel’s leaders then, Rabin, Peres, Beilin & Co., but that perception was beyond the thinking of these uneducated post-Jews and socialists so unwise about human nature, like Karl Marx himself.

The purpose of Zionism for these three was the transformation of Jews from a pariah community to a normal one, which meant no more of this chosen people stuff, no more disdain for the goyim. I remember when the U.S. betrayed Israel in December 1988 in the last weeks of the Reagan administration -- the climax of my book -- when it recognized Arafat and Co. as legitimate actors by believing that Arafat had spoken the “magic words” and won recognition when he had not.

I never felt so alone for Israel as on that December day. Israel was never so alone at that moment, when every power on the planet called Arafat a fine fellow and Israel was left all alone in its view that he was an evil bag of excreta.

I am sure I was not alone with these feelings when I then heard Ezer Weizmann from Israel, the ex-hawk reconstituted a major dove, applauded the decision to recognize Arafat, because, as I heard him say, “The whole purpose of Zionism is to take the Jews of the ghetto,” meaning in mind their cloistered thinking. Zionism was for him turning the Jews into a normal people and that would entail recognizing what the whole world had come to recognize: Arafat was a freedom fighter, with a legitimate cause, namely, that Zionism had been for him (!) a criminal enterprise.

No matter. For post-Jews like Ezer Weizman, the decision to open relations with the PLO was a great idea. It was about time the U.S. and Israel sat down with the PLO with respect for the “Palestinian” cause. For the Israeli and Jewish Left, the “Palestinians” are a nation like the Jewish nation with the usual national hopes and dreams who deserve justice for what happened to them.

Above all, the PLO cannot be dismissed as just a bunch of terrorists.

These videos, on the other hand, are evidence of what intellectual pygmies they are. Ishmaelites to the core, they hunger for everything Jewish and make up a narrative about the past that proves that what the Jews possess was really stolen from them. They boil and percolate with hunger for the land of the Jews, for Jewish history, and what comes out are accusations that the Jews are the thieves of what is rightfully theirs.

Intellectual primitives, ethical Neanderthals. The latest new out of ISIS territory today was the burning to death of 19 Yazidi girls for refusing to lie with their husbands, meaning the ISIS brutes who kidnapped, raped and enslaved them. So publically, the 19 were put in a cage in front of hundreds of spectators, surely forced at gunpoint to attend the proceedings, set on fire and burnt to death.

I imagine that if Ronald Reagan were in office instead of this Muslim dissembler, he’d launch every aircraft suitable in the Navy and Air Force to carpet bomb every ISIS concentration. The world has not seen such evil since the Holocaust. That the civilized West has not done this is akin to the abandonment of the Jews. This is now the abandonment of the Yazidis and everybody else who have fallen victim to these Muslim monsters.

A few days ago, the Clarion Project website posted a story out of Iran where five people in prison waiting to be blinded. They were convicted of throwing acid into people’s faces and Sharia law in that country calls for blinding the culprits. Some of the convicted were sentenced to have one eye blinded and one ear made deaf. Others, just one eye; others both eyes.

There is another Islamic punishment not posted in this report whose name I used to know but which escapes me for the present. It entails chopping off a hand and a foot and deliberately on the opposite side. If, for example, they chop off your left foot, you will want a cane in your right hand to help you walk. So they cut off your right hand too in order to really cripple you. They are very inventive.

Islam is the enemy of civilization, Judeo-Christian civilization, which also made major contributions to Africa, Japan and South Korea.

Islam is a menace to mankind that has taken the place of the black fascism of Nazis and the red fascism of Communists.

Here is another item: In Denmark last week, the Royal Theatre had to cancel a play based on Salman Rushdie’s 1989 novel dismissive of Islam, The Satanic Verses, that produced a “contract” on Rushdie’s life, as the Mafia might, by the Ayatollah Khomeini that wrecked his life.

The theater claims that the cancellation resulted from a scheduling conflict but its director sporting a Muslim name, one Hassan Preisler, said it was fear of Muslims. Who knows what they would do if the stage production went ahead?

On the positive side in Denmark, the government last week said it would punish preachers in mosques who encourage criminal acts and blacklist these “preachers of hate.” A Danish TV program in February ran a documentary on such preachers who call for criminal behavior; preachers calling for the stoning and lashing of unfaithful women and enforcing the right of husbands, however violent, to have their way with their reluctant wives whenever they want.

And in Israel again, in a victory for us, the district court in Nazareth ruled legal a kind of “neighborhood watch” by Israeli farmers who some time ago banded together to patrol their fields and communities that were constantly being burglarized by Arab thieves.

How ironic. The origin of today’s IDF goes back to a similar effort in 1909 in that same area, the Galilee, and the creation of a group called HaShomer, meaning the Guardian. It was the first self-help Jewish Zionist effort at armed self-defense against the endless predations of their thieving Arab neighbors.

Then after the 1920 pogrom in Jerusalem, HaShomer was upgraded to what became Haganah that evolved into today’s remarkable Israeli army.

* * (Musical Interlude) * *

Yes, the Arabs and their primitive minds and religion are as much of a menace as the totalitarian systems of the 20th century were, assisted by the wicked constellations of feelings and values known as Political Correctness according which Islam and Muslims are just like everybody else.

But if so, how to explain the unprecedented and incredibly expensive measures European police departments are taking this very week to provide security starting this Friday when the European football championship begins. Games will be played in ten different cities; there will be 51 matches, 24 teams. French Interior Minister Bernard Cazeneuve said 90,000 security personnel will be on hand – that’s just in France -- and on the lookout for ISIS devotees already threatening massacres among the infidels who attend these sporting events.

There will also be in European cities outdoor gatherings for hundreds of thousands to watch the games on giant TV screens, all these crowds constituting tempting targets for monsters. The French have publicly said, “We know that the Islamic State is planning new attacks in France.”

But also at work in Islam’s war on the West is the internal enemy of Political Correctness that calls for Westerners to identify with the Muslims as victims of their own Western societies.

In a Gatestone post by Soeren Kern, we learned that British police chiefs are having trouble finding personnel willing to bear arms for this security duty. Most police in Britain are unarmed, and police chiefs are encountering resistance in the ranks among those who don't want to carry a weapon in the event they have to use it and then, sure enough, the Enlightened will sue the policeman no matter what he did.

This sounds like the same phenomenon in the States after Ferguson and Baltimore where cops began not to get involved in what should have been their dutiful business of protecting the public for fear of the legal consequences if they did.

There has to be an awakening in the West that illuminates Political Correctness as the handmaiden of Islam in its war against the West. The Council on American-Islamic Relations, CAIR, which was designated last November as a supporter of terrorist groups overseas by the United Air Emirates, has a branch in San Francisco whose executive director during last week's Memorial Day in the States refused to honor U.S. soldiers who gave their lives for America and rebuked Muslims who serve in the U.S. armed forces because "American soldiers have killed innocent people in unjust wars."

This outfit is in sync with the President of the United States infamous for taking office then taking off for an "apology tour" to Muslim countries to apologize for imaginary American aggression.

Maybe when this villain is out of office the truth can be told about him without fear of black inner city neighborhoods erupting in riots.

Maybe when he leaves -- and Hillary Clinton is not elected, which remains a possibility at this time -- an effort can be made to speak honestly about this culture and how it should not be tolerated in the West. No good can come from pretending that Islam can be reformed and become more Western-like.

This was the fantasy of the Germans when, after being seriously depopulated by their own satanic aggression against others during WWII, they imported legions of Turks to work in the country in the mistaken belief they would assimilate or, after making good money, return to the old sod.

Well, things have not worked out that way. Worse, in what can only be understood as an act from On High, Angela Merkel threw open the doors to Germany to a million more Muslims, and what she got was that display last New Year's Eve in Cologne and other German cities of hordes of Muslim rapists. What Sweden has also done to itself in becoming the rape capital of the world surely has come from On High as well.

This all must stop, this pretending to the equality of all religions and cultures and religionists. There are a billion Christians in this world, almost a billion Hindus, a billion Chinese, Japanese Shinto, Bahai, and Jains, not to mention us little Jews. The world is full of religionists but none of them -- none of them -- behave like the Muslims who daily horrify the civilized.
