Shalom laYehudim, Shalom laBnai Noach, Shalom laGoyim. It is the evening of the 4th day, tes-zion beSivan, Parashas Shlakh Lekha, tav-shin-ayin-vav, the evening of the 3rd day, Tuesday, 21 June 2016, webcasting from the land of the People of the Book.

The people who live their lives according to the Book. You know, it was the Arabs who came up with that nickname for the Jewish people. Just imagine what it was like for them before Muhammad forced monotheism down their throats. Almost two thousand years had passed since the 12 Tribes of Israel fled Egypt, gathered at Mt. Sinai and were given the Five Books of Moses, with the sons of Ishmael still illiterate nomads and, not coincidentally, bandits.

Interesting word that, "bandit." It refers to small bands of men who prey upon other men. For thousands of years before the rise of Islam, the Arabs were known to be bandits, marauders who preyed upon one another and on foreigners. Armed robbery was kosher in their world and anything else associated with pouncing on defenseless travelers, like raping them or killing them, G-d forbid.

Into the 20th century this lifestyle continued and was written about by Gertrude Bell and her American imitator Beatrice Caroline Steuart-Erskine who enjoyed watching Arab tribesmen raid one another's tribes. This was normal behavior.

So almost 2,000 years after Maamad Sinai, the Arabs remained illiterate, savage barbarians whose rule of law was oral tradition, memory and brute force, nothing written down. And their acquaintance with the Jews all that time surely amazed them for being a people that lived according to rules written down in a book. Your average savage Ishmaelite likely knew of the mysterious thing called reading and writing, not that he could do it. Kings and emperors had assistants who knew how to do that. But here was this entire people who could read and write and live by what they read in their Book.

So we were the People of the Book to these tragically backward Ishmaelites, and unfortunately even today they remain, too many of them, mired in the mindset of the 7th century when Muhammad chopped off a lot of heads and hands.

I mean, how else are we supposed to process a news story like this one today on the so-called Foreign Ministry of the phantom State of Palestine that on Sunday, the recognized internationally, de facto, moderate peace-loving government of the Ancient Palestinians, released a statement saying that a Rabbi Mlmd (sic) “had authorized the poisoning of Palestinian wells.” The official PA website called this a crime against humanity. He asked, ‘What is the international community waiting for to interfere in the death of thousands of Balestinians of thirst?’

This same Foreign Ministry of the phantom State of Palestine last week accused Israel of cutting off water to “West Bank Palestinians”. This was, of course, another instance of their antisemitism -- lying about Jews -- that had no truth to it.

And then one’s eyes shifted on the newspaper page to another item about “Boojie” Herzog negotiating in secret with Abu Mazen before the last elections and agreeing to, basically, give away the store. He was prepared to divide Jerusalem and turn part of it into the capital Balestine; to part with the Temple Mount, except for retaining access to the Western Wall; to evacuate 96% of Judea and Samaria that is now in our hands; to drive Jews from their homes, accept into the country thousands of foreign Arabs claiming to be Ancient Palestinian refugees whose suffered in 1948.

What Boojie agreed to, basically, was the Two-State Solution, which envisions a State of Israel, 75% Jewish in population, 25% mostly Muslim, next door of a new State of Balestine completely Judenrein, Jew-free. No Jews in the new State of Philistia. I find it astonishing that any Jew would agree to the Two-State Solution that declares that Judea and Samaria must be completely Jew-free. No Jews allowed. That is what the Two-State fantasy envisions.

This was a top story today in Israel, this revelation about Herzog engaging with the enemy and ceding to him just about everything he demanded. Boojie, Isaac Herzog, is named for his grandfather who in the 1930s was the chief rabbi of Mandatory Palestine. His father Chaim, though, Boojie once said, took off his kippa after the Holocaust, meaning he lost his faith, and so today Boojie has become, in his worldview, a classic, secular leftist who cares nothing for Jewish history, Jewish historical sites, living religious sites such as the Cave of the Machpelah and Rachel’s Tomb in Bethlehem and her son’s tomb in Shechem.

All such Israelis like Herzog really have only one request of the Arabs: “Please stop killing us all the time and we will hand over everything you ask for, or almost everything.”

The Arabs have been highwaymen for thousands of years – Rashi’s definition - - who stole Judaism in the 7th century and continue to prey upon us, demanding things from us. And Israelis like this remnant of Labor Zionism, Boojie & Co., are prepared to hand over just about everything the armed robber demands in his mugging.

This character agreed to give up the Jordan River Valley as well, which even Rabin did not agree to. Herzog envisioned a joint Israel-Jordan-Palestinian defense force to fight terror.

I read that and wondered if Mr. Herzog recently fell on his head or something. Has he no memory of the joint IDF-PLO patrols in Gaza in the Oslo delirium’s earliest years that ended with a PA cop murdering his Israeli partner in their jeep?

This guy is as delusional as the Leftists 23 years ago. At least they had the excuse of the long-held Israeli view that they had to, at least, give peace a chance; they had to try it.

But he doesn’t have that luxury. Herzog apparently learned nothing from the last 23 years. His ideas are anchored in an imagined, future, harmonious, cooperative relationship on equal terms between Israelis and “Palestinians” in the joint running of their mutual capital of two states.

It turns about that working with Herzog as his emissary was Efraim Sneh, son of famous Moshe Sneh of the Communist Party. This fool said of his negotiations, “I learned that there is someone to talk with, something to talk about, and that we can arrive at understandings on everything.”

He too seems to have learned nothing from the bloody Oslo process. That process was made with Arafat, with Abbas at his side. And as we saw Arafat betray every promise to Israel via the massacres during the second intifada, so Abbas his partner is no less a villain with whom we must never deal, if only because there is no point, no benefit, because with such evil men, there is no point to agreements because they never keep them, so why make an agreement with them in the first place?

When the lunacy of Oslo surfaced in late summer of 1993, Israeli journalist Uri Dan reported that the Mossad had on record 200 agreements that Arafat had made with others in his career, with fellow Arabs and Muslims mostly, and broke every one of them. Rabin and Peres were told this but still believed Arafat would keep his word to them, to Israelis like them who respected his cause if not his methods.

Like Ehud Barak and Tsipi Livni, Boujje refers to the current Netanyahu government as “the extreme right wing,” like Ehud Barak last week repeatedly barking out the word “fascism.”

Bougie, in admitting to these secret talks, said, “After rounds of wars and funerals and nearly every year over the past decades, I won’t listen to the mantra that threats can only be subdued through military force.”

This is yet another poorly educated Israeli who suffers from a lack of knowledge of history. He apparently does not know that history is the record of nations battling nations, endlessly. Has there ever been a century in world history without wars somewhere? When the Republic of the United States of America under the new Constitution kicked in in 1789, it had three departments only, unlike the leviathan of today: the Treasury Department, the State Department that was Secretary Jefferson and five clerks, and a Department of War because those well-educated gentlemen understood that independence did not mean the end of war and the need for a military establishment. On the contrary, now that they had their independence, they would have to fight to keep it. And Americans have fought in almost every generation somewhere.

Indeed, that is the wisdom of the ages. Liberty is something people have to fight over and die for in every generation.

Versus knuckleheads like Boujie Herzog who think Israel can pacify the Arabs with words and promises of real estate and even payments to the Arab refugees of 1948 in compensation for their suffering at the hand of Israel’s success.

What a dope.

Yes, the naiveté, if that is the word, of the head of the Zionist Union Party, the official opposition in the Knesset of the State of Israel, Isaac “Boojie” Herzog, when it comes to the Arabs, is so typical of the trendy Jewish Left. They recoil from self-respect as Jews by thinking this means accepting guilt for the injustice we Israelis have visited upon the Ancient Palestinians. What wasn’t Boojie Herzog prepared to fork over to placate Abu Mazen? He conceded all of Judea and Samaria, agreed to divide Jerusalem; agreed to recognize a right of return for Balestinian refugees; agreed to a symbolic military presence only in the Jordan Valley, where Israel and Jordan and the Balestinians together will fight terror.

I read this stuff and think you can’t make this stuff up. It is as if in Herzog’s mind the Oslo years never happened. This is Einstein’s definition of madness. Oslo blew up in blood, and corpses and body parts, and here is Boojie wanting to give it another try.

For Israelis and Jews like him, because they are so uncomfortable in their Jewish identity that sets them apart, and because the goal of Zionism in their minds is to become a normal nation that people do not hate and aggress against, it is beyond their comfort zone to contemplate the utter otherness of the Arabs that makes it impossible to reach the kumbaya relationship they dream of.

Before, we heard of the PA accusation -- you know, the moderate, peace-loving PA foreign ministry, accusing us of poisoning the wells, as if we were all once again back in the 14th century. And many may remember that same accusation made by Arafat's wife in public in Gaza to Hillary Clinton, the First Lady, who did not know how to deal with it.

And now Memri.org has posted a video of a professor at the University of Jordan, presumably its highest educational institution, who opined, in the wake of the horror in Orlando, that it was clear that Omar Mateen was a "sick personality with perverse tendencies," his language, but, he said, "Homosexuality is controlled and imposed upon the world by global Zionism, Allah's No. 1 enemy on Earth."

So for sure this professor in Jordan rejected what this psychopath did -- he compared him to the Hitchcock movie, Psycho -- who was sexually addicted, his word. But in the bigger picture, he was a victim of "global Zionism that is inflicting homosexuality on the world." "Look," he said, "how gay priests are marrying one another having succumbed to the pressure of global Zionism. They, the Jews, force homosexuality upon the world. Every country must legislate laws to that effect."

What he was referring to was modern, anti-discrimination laws in the West that cover this behavior. He said that when visiting South Africa he was told the government could only receive help from the International Monetary Fund only by agreeing to these laws protecting homosexuals.

And I ask, how is it possible for a sober Israeli to even think of trying to develop a cooperative relationship with these people, a condominium arrangement for Judea and Samaria and Jerusalem, Hevron and Shechem?

Israel has no choice, I believe, but to demand its rights and fight for its right to be recognized as the sole, sovereign authority in Jerusalem, Judea and Samaria. I think the way forward, the road never taken, is the road declaring the rightness of annexing Judea and Samaria and dealing with the Arabs here as not having the franchise.

World War II ended in Europe on May 8, 1945. In July, at Potsdam on the edge of Berlin, in a posh German mansion, Churchill, Truman and Stalin met to decide what to do with the Europe that had conquered, and one decision was ordering ten million Germans living outside of Germany in neighboring countries to clear out. To take whatever was movable but otherwise get out and go live in the new, divided and truncated post-war Germany.

I do not advocate ordering the 1.5 million or so Arabs in Judea and Samaria to leave, but not because I believe we do not have the right to do that; we do, as much right as the Allied chiefs at Potsdam had to dictate to the defeated Germans the way things were going to be whether they liked it or not.

One major reason why Israel is the target of antiJews casting accusations of racism and fascism is the unspoken guilt we admit to by not claiming ownership. “Yes, yes,” we keep saying, “this land belongs to the Ancient Palestinians but they have to respect some security concerns we have before we hand over what we recognize as land rightfully belonging to them.”

Herzog’s problem, because he is post-religious, is thinking that all these material gifts he wants to present to Abu Mazen will satisfy him and his aggrieved people. He has no sense of the psychological and religious factors in play in the mind of this antisemitic Arab terrorist Mahmoud Abbas.

The violence here that never ends is all about the Arabs’ age-old appetite for the wealth of others; it is about Arab pride, Hamitic domination and Muslim arrogance.

Today’s Arabs are but a mere three generations removed from their tribal days recorded a century ago by Gertrude Bell and Beatrice Steuart-Erskine.

Look at Syria. Look at Iraq. Look at Libya. Look at Yemen. These Arabs never stop aggressing against one another and no less against us, and the sooner we grow up and accept that as part of our lives, the better.

Well, yesterday in Luxembourg, the Council of Foreign Ministers of the 28 member-countries of the EU voted to support the French desire for an international peace conference by year’s end to order a half-million Jews to evacuate their homes. Of course, this language was not used but that is the underlying intent of the so-called Two-State Solution.

The Council issued the following statement: “Both parties to the conflict need to demonstrate, through policies and actions, a genuine commitment to a peaceful solution in order to rebuild mutual trust and create conditions for direct and meaningful negotiations aiming at ending the occupation that began in 1967 and resolving all permanent status issues.”

There may be a half-dozen antiJew landmines buried here beneath the diplomatic rhetoric. For starters, the first two words, “Both parties.” That always posits the ugly and immoral moral equivalence between the two sides. Second, the statement refers to “the conflict” but does not name it or describe it. Surely, its authors had in mind the so-called Israeli-Palestinian Conflict, but that is a lie. It is enemy propaganda. It is the Arab-Israeli conflict and/or the Muslim-Jewish conflict.

Three, the call to “rebuild mutual trust” is a shameless lie. There never was any trust. The Arabs are dissemblers who lied in 1993 by giving the impression that they had finally recognized the right of al-Yabud to live free in their own independent, Jewish-majority state with Jerusalem as its capital today, as in days or yore.

Four, notice the antiJew dishonesty of calling for such a conference that would be aimed at “ending the occupation that began in 1967.” Another antiJew lie. There is no occupation according to the stipulations of international law, and in fact the paperwork from the 1920s makes plain that Judea and Samaria were recognized then as the “Jewish people’s historic homeland.” That was the language.

Moreover, Israel’s purpose in any peace conference is not to “end the occupation” but to sign a peace treaty in which the other side promises to stop murdering us all the time.

Methinks that Boojie Herzog, Federica Mogherini and other European academics see in the Arabs Israel’s victims. And in fact, throughout the ages, the Jews were always perceived as victimizing others. Every pogrom, every persecution, every expulsion, followed accusations of Jewish perfidy. For Europeans like Mogherini, the Jews are the guilty party and it is they who must placate their victims, the poor, poor, “Palestinians.”

And since Europeans of her age bracket like her lack serious knowledge of the history of the Zionist quest and the Arab-Muslim resistance to it, she likely thinks like Obama that the State of Israel was the product of guilty Europeans post-war who licensed the Jews to compensate themselves for the Holocaust by stealing Palestine from its legitimate, ancient Balestinian owners.

So guilty Europeans have to help them against the Jews who refuse to hand back the land they stole in 1967.

Last item: I just happened to catch some audio of Sean Hannity’s radio program last Friday in which two believable former government employees in the anti-terror security apparatus and good citizens told of being ordered, when Obama took office, to scrub their files of all Muslim terror suspects.

They also spoke of the appointment to government positions of known Muslim Brotherhood members and/or sympathizers, and how U.S. policy toward the Muslim Brotherhood in the Middle East is being formed and shaped in the administration by...the Muslim Brotherhood.

We have heard these stories before but this was a most compelling presentation. Hannity had them on his Fox TV show yesterday.

This is all very scary stuff. Of what is already known of Hillary Clinton’s email abuses, she must be indicted for major crimes, and may we see someday Obama himself charged with treason for collaboration with the enemy, the Muslim Brotherhood, for bringing down Arab regimes friendly to the U.S. in favor of the Brotherhood; his releasing of Muslim terror chieftains; his refusal to speak of Islamic terror at all; his diverting the conversation to gun control which is a blatant, diversionary tactic.

May HaShem keep Obama from succeeding in his worst schemes over the next months.
