Shalom laYehudim, Shalom laBnai Noach, Shalom laGoyim. It is the evening of the 4th day, z'ion beTammuz, Parashas Balak, tav-shin-ayin-var, the evening of the 3rd day, Tuesday, 12 July 2016, webcasting from Israel under 24-7 attack by world antiJewry, which is why late last night the Knesset passed the new NGO law.

This is the law that requires transparency for NGOs that receive the majority of their funds from abroad. They must now report these sources, which commonly come through front organizations, such as pseudo-think tanks established by foreign ministries, and all with the purpose of funneling money to our mortal enemies, these conscienceless, cruel and barbaric Arabs.

The final text was watered down. The Left objected to a clause calling for all representatives of such NGOs when visiting the Knesset to lobby members be required to wear tags identifying them as foreign agents. That was removed before passage, I 'm afraid.

Though watered-down, I presume, in other ways too, the EU today nonetheless protested by saying, "It seems the purpose of the law is to hamper the efforts of civil society organizations, which play no small part in the values shared between the EU and Israel."

This is glatt kosher taurine excreta. I sometimes wonder how such people can live with themselves by living a life of lies. The NGOs here are agents of antisemites overseas. They take the side of the Arabs against Israel. They parade themselves as "human rights organizations" when this is demonstrably false. The ultimate human right is to life, and the ultimate crime is the deprivation of it called murder. These “human rights organizations” are interested only in the human rights of the Ancient Ones, the original, authentic owners of Balestine whose entire country was stolen from them by the Jews. They care not for the human rights in general of those who are not goyim, us Jews. About the murder of Jews here by these savages, these “human rights organizations” say nothing of our right not to be murdered. They are worried exclusively about Balestinian rights and not human rights in general.

When it comes to their precious Balestinians murdering Jews, stabbing to death a Jewish girl as she sleeps, firing machine guns into Jewish family cars passing by, these NGOs stand mute and motionless.

Not that the EU is alone in this dishonest description of the law as “hampering the efforts of civil society organizations.”

The nerve of these goy busybodies in Europe and the West poking their noses into our affairs. Do Israelis funnel money to NGOs in Europe to oppose and undermine the policies of the democratically elected governments?

Like that shameless meeting in Paris a month ago where those 28 nations come together to discuss what must be done to the Jews who won’t hand back the land they stole in 1967. And what is fascinating is the obliviousness of these goyim to the singling out of Israel as they single out no other country, while simultaneously they are irritated by the Jews who call themselves the Chosen People. Collectively they come together precisely to choose the world’s only Jewish state in a unique way and then complain the Jews called themselves the Chosen People.

Where are such conferences of 28 states assembled to discuss what Russia must do or do not in Crimea and Ukraine? Only the Jewish state gets this special treatment. The UN Human Rights Council singles out Israel by name for rebuke at every meeting, which is unique among all the 193 member-states in the UN. The nations that gathered in Paris think they know better than the Jews what is the right course in our endless friction with these Ishmaelites.

They and the backers of these NGOs like the New Israel Fund of antiJew Jews in the U.S. -- who do not even understand that they are antiJew Jew -- that funnel money to antiJew Jews here to work on behalf of Arabs whose bread and butter is the antisemitic fantasy of a “Palestinian” people victimized by us Zionists.

Yesterday, JPost reported on how several anti-Jew organizations in the States, that is, their Jeremy Sharon reported and called them “pro-Palestinian” organizations -- I prefer “anti-Jew” to “pro-Palestinian” -- who now blame the recent killing of African-Americans in Minnesota and Louisiana on Israel!

For example, at NYU, the notorious Students for Justice in Palestine recently posted on Facebook the idea that the “genocide of African-Americans in the U.S. is perpetrated by those responsible for the genocide of the Palestinians.”

The logic here is that some U.S. police departments have sent personnel to Israel to learn about combatting terrorism and how Israel handles the problem.

One off-the-rails Jewess on the lunatic Mondoweiss hate website, Alice Rothchild, said IDF policies were “racist toward brown people” and wrote of the “parallels between white racism and Jewish supremacy that flourish here and abroad.”

And I never cease to be amazed at the pathways of the mind in people stricken with antiJewitis. Their thinking like this is simply delusional. These people are delusional about Jews, no less than Adolph Hitler was. Throughout history, the Jews have been the victims of people whose minds percolate with delusions of Jewish evil-doing that have no basis in reality.

The entirety of the Palestinian National liberation movement is one gigantic delusion, like a bad dream. “The Jews stole Palestine from our ancestors,” they say. And never mind so many of today’s “Palestinians” are the grandchildren of migrant workers from all over Araby who came into Palestine unhindered, no fences in those days, no passports, to look for work.

Just like today. I think the number of day laborers let into Israel every day now from Judea and Samaria is 120,000. And so it was, starting in the 1920s, when the Mandate kicked in and the subsequent infusion of capital for building up the land, building roads for motorcars after World War I that had never existed, etc. This too attracted manual, unskilled Arab labor.

This is the point of Joan Peters’s great book From Times Immemorial (1984) tracking the in-migration of Arabs in that period. Probably more Arabs entered Palestine illegally at that time than Jewish Zionists legally.

And that is the way it is today. Arabs dependent on Israel for work, whose heads are filled with a fantasy history that never was, with the whole world including Israelis playing along with this delusion.

Well, actually, it is kind of understandable. The creation of this myth was accompanied in the 1960s and 70s and 80s by one horrific terror atrocity after another that traumatized civilization into incipient dhimmitude. In my book, I take note of how one European state after another made secret deals with the PLO, letting them use their countries for plotting terror against Jewish and Israeli targets, in exchange for no terrorism in the country that made the deal.

In a word, they bought protection, very much like their European predecessors hundreds of years ago who paid tribute to the Muslims on the other side of the Mediterranean not to prey upon their merchant ships a.k.a. the Barbary Pirates.

So in the 1970s Europe was hit by lots of terror acts so that in 1980, the European Community, as the EU was then called, in its Venice Declaration, recognized the PLO as a legitimate movement with a worthy cause. They, the PLO, represented the Ancient Palestinians whose entire country was stolen by the Jews.

So, yes, “delusions about Jews” is a good definition of anti-Jew thinking throughout the ages. The manifest content morphs from generation to generation, country to country, culture to culture, but no matter its form that changes with the circumstances of the times, it is always furious allegations of terrible crimes and schemes the Jews are forever plotting against non-Jews.

Consider a Jewish Telegraph Agency report today on the Arutz 7 site about a documentary on ZDF, the German public TV system, that bore the original title of “Educated to hate? How Israeli and Palestinian children are taught to mutually despise each and to kill.”

It was shown a week ago and sober viewers protested the lie; there is no other word for it. Indeed, in the film itself, while there was footage of Arab children with knives being taught how to murder Jews, there was nothing comparable on the Israeli-Jewish side.

Clearly, this was a case of naked moral equivalence, the attempt, basically, to deny the Jews their victim status as the targets of these homicidal Muslim maniacs by equating the two groups. If Muslim children are taught to hate and to murder, so are the Jews. The original subtitle said the two groups were “taught to mutually despise each other and to kill.”

And I can guarantee any doubter that Jewish children are never taught to hate Arabs. And those who do wind up hating them come to that emotional state via the behavior of the Arabs themselves. No Jew has to teach another Jew to hate Arabs. The Arabs do the teaching themselves.

This German documentary also tried to paint Jewish childhood education as racist and dismissive of Arab culture because one Israeli textbook showed one photograph of a Bedouin on a camel.

In the end, ZDF claimed that while the film was fair, it admitted to its critics that the subtitle was inappropriate and it “greatly regretted any possible hurt feelings.”

What’s important here is the sub rosa antisemitism, a hatred in Europe that since 1945 can no longer appear in public without a disguise. This business of moral equivalence between Jews and Arabs here is more antisemitism undercover. The moral equivalence gambit denies the blatant guilt of the Arabs for their barbaric behavior, in this case, teaching murderous hatred to their kids and even demonstrating how to kill Jews. It sees the Jews in this film as guilty of aggression against the Balestinians, which therefore mitigates the guilt of the Balestinians. It diminishes the sheer, naked, evil hatred by Arabs for Jews, and simultaneously points the finger of guilt at us.

Indeed, the entirety of the fantasy of a “Palestinian” nation was the invention of a parallel people to the Jewish people with parallel equal rights to what the Jews claim is theirs by right and the agreement of the League of Nations after World War I.

The arguments in favor of the Zionist movement of renewal by the Jews -- at that point a half-century old -- were decisive, for the Arabs had no counter claims to Palestine at the time the League of Nations was founded. The Arabs said there was no such country.

So over the next generation the Arabs dreamed up an ancient nation to stand up to the Jews and challenge their claims with identical claims of their own.

And here is German public TV broadcasting a documentary on the identical crimes of the Jews and the Arabs who “mutually despise each other.”

But in all honesty, when it comes to undisguised, good old-fashioned shameless Jew-hatred, nothing beats the Iranians. Every year, since a proclamation made by Ayatollah Khomeini as soon as he came to power in 1979, the last Friday of Ramadan has become a new holiday, Jerusalem Day, a day of hatred for the Jews in occupation of al-Quds. And the day before this year’s day, the government newspaper in Teheran, Al-Kayhan, Ayatollah Khomeini’s mouthpiece, editorialized on Israel and how it came into being. The editorial of this mainstream newspaper described Jews as “cheaters, cunning, subversive, racist, plundering and satanic who have exploited the myth of the Holocaust in order to steal Islamic land. The enemies of Islam invented an entity out of riffraff from ethnic groups under the guise of the Jewish religion, so that the Jews could enslave the world. The European states lead by England and America agreed to the Jewish plot not only because they wanted to expel their own Jews, which were an element for subversion and espionage, but also because they wanted to use them as a perpetual deterrent to the rise of Islam...The establishment of the Jewish state involved a litany of lies about the Holocaust, which successfully duped the countries that voted for the state at the UN...The myth of the Holocaust, although a figment of the Jewish historians’ imagination, grew in part from the roots of social reality. Although the Auschwitz crematoria and the rest are a figment of the Jew’s imagination, this great lie emerged from the Europeans’ hatred of Jews...The enemies of Islam drew the Jews to Palestine from every place in the world and they pinned together diverse ethnic groups with different languages and customs, who had only the religion of the Jews in common, so that they might intermingle and that they might in this way, enslave the world more than in the past...They created the myth of the Holocaust in order to attract economic investment...But the main reason behind Europe’s and America’s support for the establishment of Israel lies in their desire to be rid of their subversion via commerce, espionage, trade in antiquities, disruption of norms and usury. The most important reason of was the desire to create a dogmatic, merciless, racist, rapacious and cunning base on Islamic land, called Israel that would constitute deterrence in the world to counter a growing Islam, so that they could cause the Muslims to perpetually fear the satanic dog of Israel.”

Well, there was more in this Memri.org translation. One could go on and on in this vein. But I think it is enough to judge these Iranians, and this newspaper that represents the ruling elite, as wacky about Jews as the Nazis ever were, and Israel and Israel's friends have been remiss in not painting Iran with Nazi-like hatred of Jews to delegitimize that state. As there were in the 1960s marches on Washington for civil rights for Negroes and anti-Viet Nam war demonstrations, the pro-Israel community should have during last year's disgusting Iran deal negotiations organized similar mass demonstrations in Washington because Iran is Nazi Germany all over again when it comes to Jews. But that did not happen.

Trouble is, the pro-Israel American Jewish community is shrinking at great speed, for this generation of Jews without the religion is functionally not Jewish at all, let alone capable of challenging the President of the U.S. when the MSM is so in love with him.

One symptom of this has been the weakening of AIPAC whose factotums these days don't know who they are.

Here is another news item representative of the thought we ended the last segment with: the weakening of Jewish identity in the States among that vast ocean of Jews who don't live Jewish lives. Nitsana Darshan-Leitner has just filed suit in New York again Facebook, against Mark Zuckerberg, the devout atheist, asking for a billion dollars. Her NGO Shurat Hadin is representing Israeli-American families, those with dual citizenship brutalized by Hamas terrorists who used Facebook to plan their crimes, and Zuckerberg did not stop them. At issue are five terror attacks between June 2014 and March 2016. According to Darshan-Leitner, this assistance by Facebook violates anti-terrorism legislation in U.S. law.

And coincidentally in Israel today, Ministress of Justice Ayelet Shaked and Minister of Internal Security, Gilad Erdan -- she of the Jewish Home Party, he of Likud -- submitted a proposal today that they are calling the Facebook Law. It would authorize the state to petition the court for permission to delete content on social media sites if judged criminal in intent and representative of a danger to public safety.

I hope it goes through. Facebook's product is produced outside of Israel and Israel should have the right to block incitement to crime entering from outside. If in the pre-Internet era, a terrorist outside the country mailed instructions to confederates inside the country, and Israel knew of the communication, it had the right to confiscate the letter in the Israeli post office, not let it go through, so Israel has the right to monitor and control communications coming from outside that plot terror.

And on the good news side of the ledger for today, it was good to see how in England Theresa May replaced David Cameron. All those in the know here say she is a long-standing friend of Israel, which makes sense. As Home Secretary, she surely was abreast of the rising tide of Islam in the UK and its dangers, and surely has the brains to see our situation in a similar light. We have a similar enemy: Muslims. Cameron has been pro-Israel and all reports say she will be too.

How the world turns. A generation ago, the liberals and the Left were pro-Israel and the right was hostile to Israel.

Today it is just the opposite. I saw that happening by 1984 when I bailed, when the “San Francisco Democrats,” as the late great Jeanne Kirkpatrick called them, refused to include an anti antisemitism clause in the platform because Jesse Jackson, with presidential fantasies at the time, did not want it included. That was the first time I voted Republican, for Ronald Reagan, in his second term.

May the Good Lord protect us all until the Bad Man in the Oval Office is gone and may he do no more damage before then to the US and to Israel.

Although I am not optimistic. I could have watched at least a few minutes of the Loretta Lynch testimony to Congress today but did not. I did not have the stomach for it. I knew which way it would go.

Surely, there must be some way through the legal system to fight back against this dreadful situation in which she and Comey are refusing to indict Hillary Clinton for her crimes and misdemeanors. And that this is not happening is so depressing. It is as if, to match the sick attacks on police, the whole country legislatively is coming apart.
