Shalom laYehudim, Shalom laBnai Noach, Shalom laGoyim. It is the evening of the 6th day, yud-bes beTishrei Parasha Haazinu, the evening of the 5th day, Tuesday, 13 October 2016, webcasting from the focal point of world hatred.

Har Sinai, in Hebrew, Mount Sinai, the Sages taught us, is, for want of a better word, a pun for being a word that combines the word hatred/sina, with the common suffix i denoting the first person possessive “my,” so that in Modern Hebrew we would say sinati “my hatred.”

In other words, HaShem gave us His Torah and people would hate Him through us.

That, at least, is how yours truly understands hatred of the Jews in every generation. It is less hatred of the Jews than of G-d.

I mean, a rational mind should perceive the Jews as they are. In generation after generation, sober people would have seen the Jews as a non-threatening community. Instead, via the hatred that clouded their vision, gentiles have hated Jews because they can't face hating God directly because that makes no sense. But that is what they are doing.

So in every generation, they concoct fantasies of Jewish malevolence to justify their murderous hatred. You see it still on the talkbacks, this primeval hatred of Jews for being in control of the whole world out to enslave all of mankind. The Hamas Covenant of 1988 was like this, sounding like the Protocols of the Elders of Zion, like some of the hated-filled essays written by Karl Marx about Jews. He saw them as part of an international conspiracy to control the world's money supply, its capital, Das Kapital.

Antisemitism in his age was a crank, pseudo-scientific body of ideas that took the place of the Christian Deicide charge. His atheist Marxism saw in Jews as a nation of Shylocks, Jew-bankers out to monopolize all money in the world, make the Jews rich and everyone else poor. And the Jews did not care how many people died in the wars they instigated, for that is when they made the most money as war profiteers. There was a connection, Marx said, between capitalism and wars.

And today the latest fantasy is their theft of Palestine from the “Palestinians,” with Israel being the principle obstacle to peace and justice by refusing to give back the “West Bank,” this geography that the “Palestinians” never had a name for and still don’t.

And this anti-Jewism is global, found all over the world as it clouds the vision of even Israel’s alleged backers.

Take, for example, what I said/what I predicted last Sunday. That day saw the latest Jew-killing in Jerusalem, the drive-by shooter who killed two and wounded six. Up for discussion at the time of the webcast was the State Department’s unusually harsh tongue-lashing of Israel over building 98 new homes for Jews on barren ground displacing no allegedly ancient Arabian. In the matter of that day’s ritual sacrifice of Jews at the Ammunition Hill light rail stop and then in Shimon HaTzadik, I said, “I doubt that tomorrow we will read of similar harsh remarks from Washington and Brussels directed this time at Fatah for declaring the savage a martyr, a hero, a holy man.” If you remember, before the day was out, Fatah did just that.

That is what I said last Sunday, and this is what the State Department did say. It referred to a “terrorist attack in Jerusalem that took the lives of two Israelis...deepest condolences to the families of those killed... (and) there is absolutely no justification for the taking of innocent lives. We also condemn the statements glorifying this reprehensible and cowardly attack.”

Time for some classical deprogramming here. As I point out in my book, this is a statement, so typical of UN resolutions, that mentions Israelis but identifies no other nationality. We read of the State Department condemning the “statements glorifying this reprehensible and cowardly attack” but we don’t know who made them. The statements are condemned but those who made them are unidentified. Notice, too, the statements sent condolences to “the families of those killed” but not to “the families of the victims.” In this statement, there are no victims. The Jews are not victims and their murderer is nameless. He has no affiliation.

This was a “terrorist attack,” but the type of terrorist was not identified. Who was he? Could he have been some lost, fossil of a Northern Ireland IRA just looking to kill somebody? Maybe some Kurdish terrorist? We don’t know.

UN resolutions did this more than once. Addressing some clash, usually a homicidal strike by Arabs at Jews in Israel, an act of attack murder and terror, Israelis are named as a party to the clash but not the national identity of their attackers.

And what we have here is example of this kind veiling that goes on in Araby, which behavior they have imposed on others. What triggered this State Department message was yet another homicidal Muslim maniac, but surely in the age of Obama, his Islamic religion was not mentioned.

In an interesting variation, too, of this covert anti-Semitism, the UN's so-called Coordinator for the Middle Peace Process who of course coordinates nothing, Nickolay Mladenov, issued his statement after the attack Sunday which admittedly began on a much higher level than the American one: "I condemn this morning's terror attack by a Palestinian perpetrator in occupied East Jerusalem which killed two Israelis and injured six others. Nothing can justify such attacks. My thoughts are with the families and friends and of all victims..." but then ended with a typical, anti-Jew twist. "It is deplorable and unacceptable that Hamas and others choose to glorify such acts which undermines the possibility of a peaceful future for both Palestinians and Israelis."

Take note: "Hamas and others" are glorifiers, but again, as in the US statement, these others doing the glorifying are cloaked in mystery. Who could they be?

But of course there is no mystery. What "others" refers to in these statements the glorifying the horror is the PA/Fatah Media. You know, those moderate, peace-loving "victims of Zionism" who just a want that cute little state in the "West Bank" next door, that's all.

In the official PA daily Al-Hayat al-Jadida, meaning New Life, there was nothing but praise for that lunatic murderer. One PA columnist called him "the lion of Jerusalem and al-Aqsa."

This newspaper, keep in mind, is functionally a cousin of Pravda in the old Soviet Union. And the Oslo numbskulls who allowed for this totalitarian control of the media by this Frankenstein's monster of the PA to blame.

The PA newspaper ran a political cartoon as well of a machine gun waving over the Dome of Rock and below it pools of blood representing the two Jews who died the day before, that heroic cop and 60 year-old woman.

The "others" obliquely referred to in these official statements are the criminals of the allegedly peaceful Fatah gang. The truth is that Oslo was built on a phony assessment of Fatah and that is directly the fault of the Peace Processors, Rabin, Peres, Beilin & Co. Like Leftists everywhere, they lacked all ability to judge Arafat and Abbas for what they really were. Oslo was based on the belief it was possible to partner with them to the benefit of both sides because these Leftists wanted to see them a mirror image of the Jews: a little people that wants just a little state. They saw in the PLO leaders who cared about their people like Ben-Gurion or Jabotinsky, cared about their people. Their own self-image as Leftists clouded their vision and made it impossible to see these criminal savages for who they really were.

And in this textbook example of covert antisemitism buried in the language of international diplomats, the “others” who glorify the horror are catered to, I think, not only thanks to their antiJew feelings but, frankly, the fear of Fatah and friends. It is an old story among journalists in the Middle East that negative reporting about any group can get you killed, so you don’t.

Here are both statements refusing to name the guilty party because that would discredit the PA and the current fantasy that declares it is a peacemaking organization and exposes oneself to admitting how deeply they are involved in homicidal violence.

So, with Fatah you don’t name names. And you play along with the fantasy that the “victims of Zionism” are the victims in this region of the aggressors, the Jews.

So this week we had this classical, covert language of antisemitism buried in official statements, and we also learned that UNESCO has passed a resolution naming Jewish holy sites in Jerusalem as Muslim sites with Muslim names. The Hebrew names will appear in UNESCO documents only in quotation marks as if to suggest they are not the real names.

Again, official Israel is indignant, and I wish they would do a reset on their emotions and responses. I mean, the huffing and puffing has become tiresome and I wish, instead, they would hire some Hollywood comedy writers to come up with zingers and stingers to ridicule the lunacy of these mostly Muslim states.

24 member states voted for this insanity, which is less than half of the 56-member state committee. More countries, 26 to be exact, abstained and six opposed. And without seeing the final list, it is a fair bet the majority of the 24 are Muslim countries, which is perfectly understandable. In the year 2000, after almost 1,400 years of Muslims boasting that they were the true chosen people, the most beloved by Allah, which is why they ruled over the site for the Jews’ former temples, the new doctrine out of the mouth of Yasir Arafat at Camp David was that the Jews never had any temples on Haram-al-Sharif. They just say this, he said, because they want to steal it from the Muslims. The psychological projection here is monumental.

In other words, the Arabs license themselves to rewrite history if the new version empowers them in the present to get what they want. They are all appetite, all Freudian Id unrestrained by any conscience, which is the hallmark of civilization. No guilt.

Which, by the way, is a major concern in the book of Leviticus, which, not coincidentally, is at the heart, in the middle of, the Five Books. How many other religions in the 14th century b.c.e. were concerned with feelings of guilt and shame and how to run a healthy, civilized society?

So I wish Israelis would take a new tack and look for the humor in this ludicrous behavior of grown men and women denying the Jewish connection to the Temple Mount. It is a kind of mass insanity, a mass hysteria, mass denial. It is on a par with Holocaust Denial. In both pathologies, history is deleted.

The Holocaust earned the Jews pity? Then, “There was no Holocaust.”

The Jews never forgot where their temples stood and prayed for thousands of years to return? So you say, “No, they did not. This is a Muslim holy site and always was, never a Jewish one.”

I think what Israel might try here is less anger and more satire, but, of course, that would include making fun of non-white, Third World people who are like Rousseau’s Nobel Savage, by definition the victims of Western imperialism. Make fun of these Muslims and you open yourself up to the charges of racism and Islamophobia.

Ridicule should not be difficult to produce. The link posted for this webcast leads to a professor of history in Cairo discussing Christopher Columbus. Yesterday was Columbus Day, October 12. It is a must-see video. It is an example of the kind of people who aggress against us, and why rational negotiations are simply not possible.

What also deserves ridicule, to be evenhanded about it, are responses of some Israelis, particularly on the ludicrous Left. MK Ayelet Nahmias-Verbin – the hyphen tells us she is a feminist – of the so-called Zionist Union, attacked the UNESCO decision as “not just anti-Israel but antisemitic, a decision which shows how much this organization is intent on fighting Israel and Judaism far more than dedicating itself to education, culture and science.”

Okay, but then she added this kicker: “The decision is proof of Israel’s poor-standing in international circles,” which she, of course, attributes to the policies of Benjamin Netanyahu. She is capable in this case of identifying the blatant antisemitism in such nonsense, but when it comes to the larger picture, as an Israeli, antisemitism plays no role. Its poor standing internationally, she believes, is the government’s fault, Netanyahu’s fault. Israeli and Jewish Leftists are functionally blind to the role that antisemitism has always played among the goyim, the nations of the world. Leftists like these are oblivious to the reality that as in the generations of our forebears when antisemitic goyim were a threat in every year, so today antisemitism remains alive and well and the principle energy of so-called Palestinian Nationalism and the so-called “Palestinian” cause.

And then there was Princess of Peace Tsipi Livni, also of the same retreat Mapai socialist Zionist stream, the Zionist Union, who wrote a letter to the head of UNESCO “expressing concern that the decision could lead to an escalation in the Israeli-Palestinian conflict,” as she calls it, apparently in the belief that this would be news to the head of UNESCO and he would not like that escalation in violence against Jews at random.

Well, here she was doing exactly what I wrote about her in my book. Of course, she insisted that UNESCO's job is to "preserve the heritage of the past...(and) I have differences with the government, but there is no place for politics over the authentic historic connection of the Jewish people to the Temple Mount and Western Wall. We have a joint responsibility" -- I assume she meant UNESCO and herself -- "to prevent the national conflict from deteriorating into a religious conflict -- and this decision could cause just that."

Again, she makes the assumption that the head of UNESCO, just like her, does not want to see the situation deteriorate. And again, as in my book, she waves the banner of Palestinian Nationalism as the antidote to a religious war which cannot be solved. Because she wants peace, she defines the situation as she wants it to be instead of what it is.

As my books shows, the vocabulary of the Fatah is exclusively religious, so all this nationalism stuff is no more than camouflage.

Now here's another example of covert anti-Jewism in a news story not directly related to us Israelites. Two days ago, the Daily Mail reported that the European Commission on Racism and Intolerance, which is an appendage of the Council of Europe and the European Union apparatus, the ECRI, that has demanded that the British press stop naming the religion of terrorists who are Muslims. "This practice leads to intolerance and hate speech."

According to the Swede who runs this bureaucratic scam of lazy nobodies who know nothing of hard work for their cushy salaries, one Mr. Christian Ahland, said that it is, "no coincidence that racist violence is on the rise in the UK, at the same time as we see worrying examples of intolerance and hate speech in the newspapers, online and even among politicians."

You got that? This is antiJewism because it is defending homicidal Muslim maniacs who hate Jews and Christians no less -- like this Swedish meatball's first name -- who has got it all backwards. He sees the antagonism towards Muslims as the catalyst for what he calls racist violence, and never mind that has nothing to do with the violence he has in mind. It is not the color of a Muslim's skin. They come in all colors. It is their beliefs and their behaviors, such as preaching murder and carrying it out that make people antagonistic to them.

If race had anything to do with, the Brits in the UK would long ago have made life difficult for Indian Hindus among them, but since the Hindus are no threat, they never have.

This Christian Ahland of Sweden sounds just like the type of suicidal leftist in his native Sweden who have been committing suicide since the 1970s with their “Let’s become a multicultural country instead of a Swedish one.”

Fortunately, a UK minister responded to his rebuke from his mountaintop as director of the European Commission against Racism and Intolerance. Said a spokesman for HMG, “The Government is committed to a free and open press and does not interfere with what the press does and does not publish as long as the press abides by the law.”

This Swede has the mind of a contemporary totalitarian of the Left with their vocabulary of words like Islamophobia, homophobia and transphobia.

Which brings me to the absolute insanity of the Trump-Clinton clash this past week, which is far less about what it should be -- domestic economic and foreign policy, national and defense than the sexual behavior of the two principles.

In a way, this could not be more appropriate because these combatants are representatives of an America, I believe, that has crippled itself by its sexual deviance and vulgarity, its all pervasive pornography; its tsunami of scatological, filthy words in common speech which have to do with the activities of reproduction and evacuation.

I, for one, can no longer watch any movie with such language, and I am not a prude. It is just the constant drumbeat of these thoughts that grates.

And I thought it was rich for Robert De Niro to want to punch Trump in the nose for his crude speech. The next time De Nero wants to pop off like this in public, he should first read some pages of his own dialogue in Raging Bull.

And here are Hillary and cohorts trying to smear Trump with a handful of alleged incidents of decades ago that even at their worst do not compare with the horrible behavior of Hillary’s husband and Hillary the Horrible covering up for him and going after his victims.

What a terrible pit of corruption American has fallen into. Family entertainment in the home now includes MTV videos seen as pornographic a half-century ago; family entertainment like the Super Bowl half-time show of semi-clothed Beyoncé writhing and pouting; all across America cheerleaders in high schools and colleges are skimpily-dressed like prostitutes of a generation ago, dancing and jumping in sexually provocative exhibitionism.

This current presidential campaign has exposed Donald Trump popping off like a high school braggart using the filthiest of language, vs. Hillary, the Bruce Jenner of the distaff side, obsessed with making it as a man in a woman’s body and to hell with everyone and everything else.

This woman, married to a rapist whom she has defended all her adult life in her hunger for the White House. She is a like a cancer infecting one organ of the body after another. She has corrupted the State Department, the Department of Justice, the FBI, and of course at her side was the MBA, Muslim Brotherhood Agent, this saboteur in the Oval

Historians of the future will be scratching their heads over this generation and what went wrong.
